Canadian Woods In Winter.

The country of the Little Saguenay is as rough as any part of the Rocky mountains. It is the custom to dress lightly for traveling, notwithstanding the 20 degrees below zero, and even then one perspires very freely, making it impossible to hang for a rest, on account of the chill of the open pores. Ice forms on eyebrows, hair and mustache, while the sweat freezes in scales on the back of one's neck. The snow falls from the trees on the voyager, and melting slightly from the heat of the body, forms a coat of ice. Shades of Nansen and all the arctic men! I do not understand why they are not all pillars of ice unless it be that there are no trees to dump snow on them.
The spruce and hemlock of these parts all point upward as straight as one could set a lance, to resist the constant fall of snow. If one leaned over a little out of the perpendicular, it could not survive the tremendous average of 50 feet of snowfall each winter. Their branches do not grow long, else they would snap under the weight. Every needle on the evergreens has its little burden of white, and without intermission the snow comes sifting down from the sky through the hub of the winter.

When we stopped and the creak of the snowshoes was still, we could almost hear our hearts beat. We could certainly hear the cracking of the tobacco burning in our pipes. It had a muffled sound. So solemn is it, so little you feel yourself, that it is a consciousness which brings unconsciousness, and the calm white forest is almost deadening in its beauty. The winter forest means death.—Frederic Romington in Harper's.

Hens That Eat Their Own Eggs.

As a rule, when hens have suitable food they don't eat their own eggs. To preserve eggs from being eaten under exceptional conditions there are a number of devices. There is, for instance, a nest with a bottom of woven wire with a mesh big enough to let an egg through. The egg goes through the thin layer of hay with which the nest is lined and through the wide meshed bottom to fall safely in a bed of hay underneath.

Another device is automatic and set in operation by the chicken itself when it steps off the nest. Thus relieved of the chicken's weight, the nest tilts up enough to roll the egg off into a place of safe deposit.
Chickens are commonly carried on deep water ships on long voyages to supply eggs for the captain's table and occasionally for a fowl. Chickens at sea are more likely to eat their own eggs than they are ashore. To prevent this among the chickens carried on his vessel the captain of an American ship rigged a contrivance that answered the purpose. The egg was attached to the situation. It attached to the underside of the nest a shute by which the egg when laid was carried safely down to a box below.—New York Sun.

WATCH YOUR COWS.

should be kept ready.

Messrs Douglas & Co., Napanee.
Dear Sirs—Having had wonderful success with your Liniment with my stock, etc, I feel it my duty to write you in behalf of mine. Our cattle were troubled with neck bags, they were so badly caked we thought they would lose the use of them, but as usual your Douglas' Egyptian Liniment was applied twice, and in twenty-four hours we could milk as well as ever. When anything in our home or stables goes wrong your Liniment is called for at once, it never has failed. Hoping this letter may assist you in putting forward the greatest Liniment on sale.
I remain, yours truly,
Sheffield, Ont. ROBERT HARKNESS.

THE WE ALL CHINE TO LIFE.

"The strangest thing in life is the way we cling to it," said a physician whose practice has given him abundant opportunity to study the seamy side of things. "Five minutes ago I gave a dime to an old beggar man who has been broken by age and tortured by an incurable cancerous malady that renders him repulsive and keeps him in continual pain. I know his history. He is in constant and he has been poor. In his early life he was a sailor before the mast, and from what I can learn he suffered all the hardships of that calling without seeking any of its pleasures and advantages. He never married and never had any family or home. I have questioned him closely, and I have been unable to discover a scrap of genial reminiscence cover a scrap of genial reminiscence of his career. He has absolutely nothing that he can ponder over with the slightest degree of pleasure, and his present situation is simply frightful."
"He slopes in a used lack of a negro hotel and depends on alms for his food and clothes; yet, in spite of it all, he is eager to keep on living and refuses to die. He is the last thought of death. He can't afford, but he wants to continue to live. It's a mystery of mysteries, and the case is not exceptional either. There are plenty of others exactly like it."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Perfectly Cured

Weak and Low Spirited - Nervous Prostration - Appetite Poor and Could Not Rest.

I take great pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla to others. It has been the means of restoring my wife to good health. She was stricken down with an attack of nervous prostration. She suffered with headaches and her nerves were under severe strain. She became very low spirited and so weak she could only do a little work without resting. Her appetite was poor, and being so weak she could not get the proper rest at night. She decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, as we had heard it highly praised, and I am glad to state that Hood's Sarsaparilla has perfectly cured all her ailments. G. MARRIED AT GREINA.

A pleasant evening was spent at the residence of W. J. Mellow, postmaster at Greina, December 28th, when his only daughter, Ella Jane, was united in matrimony to John Malcolm Outwater, only son of S. M. Outwater, Adolphstown. The bride looked very attractive in a dress of electric blue, trimmed with white satin. The wedding was performed by the Rev. S. Crookshanks, pastor of the Bay Circuit. Only the near relatives of the contracting parties were present. Miss Mellow will be very much missed in the Greina church and Sunday school, in both of which she was an active worker. - Napawee Review.

TO OUR WOMEN.

Worthless Home Dyes That Cause Serious Losses in Many Homes.

Many of our Canadian women have been greatly deceived in the years just closed by worthless home dyes, that some have determined never again to use. While we sympathize with the many deceived women, we must say their decision is not a wise one. Because we have in our midst a few unskilled dye manufacturers, and money loving merchants who for the sake of long profits are ready to sell poor goods, it is not fair to assert that all merchants are actuated by the same unworthy motives.

Deceptive dyes have usually plenty of bulk to recommend them, but this bulk is composed of common, coarse ingredients. Some dyes have just coloring power sufficient to make them dangerous to any ordinary material. Others have a small percentage of color with an extra supply of soap grease power. Such are the dyes that have wrought ruin to good materials, dresses, skirts, blouses, ribbons, suits for men and boys, and brought confusion to many a trusting and worthy woman.

While it cannot be denied that deception has a footing in our land, it is pleasing to know that the Diamond Dyes, representing perfect work, honesty and truth, have brought gladness and profit to thousands of happy homes. All classes and conditions of women have used the Diamond Dyes with unvarying success, and during the year 1898 not a failure was reported when the very simple directions were followed.

Diamond Dyes are prepared according to special scientific principles, and no other dyes in the world have cost so much to bring to their present standard of excellence. They are the only kind that the wife or the daughter can use with confidence and profit.

Mrs. J. S. Elliott of Hungerford died on Dec. 24th, aged 80.

IN PETERBORO

MR. J. M. DONOVAN TELLS HOW DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED HIM.

Peterboro, Dec. 20. This town is famous for its doctors. Dr. Dodd is the most go-ahead, progressive, wealthy and up-to-date on the continent. This reputation is thoroughly deserved, and was earned by his long residence in this town, and to take advantage of a "good thing" when it comes our way.

One especially good thing that our people have benefited by is the king of kidney cures—Dodd's Kidney Pills. A household remedy in Peterboro.

Among those cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills, I mention the name of Mr. W. Wright. I believe a good deal of human interest could be put in play with the scenes laid in a pawnshop.

Read—My dear boy, the father in a pawnshop is something absolutely human.

Too Much Interest.

Wright—Where's the rich heires you're engaged to?

Tellum—You see that lovely girl in pink at the other side of the room?

Askum—Yes, I said, old man, what a snare!

Tellum—Well, it isn't his. It's that grand old ruin in yellow sitting next her.—London Tit-Bits.

Too Much Interest.

Wright—Where's the rich heires you're engaged to?

LOVE'S WISDOM.

I have seen what the seraphs have seen
As they gaze through the limitless air,
Through the wind and the clouds to the lean Tale face of the moon and the stars
Bright light of the sun and the stars
I have seen what the seraphs have seen.

Through the limitless spaces of air
The waves mist and the stars and the sun
Are pulled and patient and fair
They followed the patient and fair
For I gazed in the deep of love's eyes,
And I know what no seraphs shall gaze.

I have known them—the brave mist that came
And the glory and the stars and the sun
Where all strife and impatience are vain
And a host of all passionate signs,
For I gazed in the deep of love's eyes,
And I know what no seraphs shall gaze.

BEN'S DIPLOMACY.

She stood on the back veranda making up the butter. The sleeves of her blue print gown were rolled up past her elbows, and her hands were wet with egg and red from the scalding and chilling process.

Suddenly there came a sharp knocking at the hall door, and a tall, stately, featured woman thrust her head through the bathroom window, which looked out on the back veranda.

"Here's some one at the door, Bessie," she said, and her whisper could have reached to the house front.

The girl hurried along the narrow passage, unrolling her right sleeve as she went, which was the one to be presented when the door should be opened.

"Good morning," she said as serenely as could be expected from one whose hopes had been raised by a shadow on a frosted pane and shattered by the opening of the door.

"Good morning," said the man at the doorstep, and his eyes smiled crookedly at the girl, which was the exact spot where her face was, according to his focus. "Good morning, I—thought maybe you'd like some peas. They're quite young and fresh, and I've just pulled them."

"We've just got some," said the girl. "John always comes on a Saturday."

"I thought maybe you'd have them," said the young man to the knocker, "but I'd rather have flowers."

The door opened, and a shadow on her face appeared above the girl's shoulder. The young man moved his eyes to a hole that had been made for a latch-key.

"Good morning, Mrs. Stuart," he said eagerly. "I—I just looked round to see if Miss Bessie would't like some fresh young peas. I had a good crop of 'em this time."

"Why, of course Bessie will," said Mrs. Stuart, "and she's very much obliged to you for 'em. Aren't you Bessie?"

"Yes, mother," she said, but the words seemed to come from behind shut teeth.

"What are you going to do with your self on Sunday, Ben?" asked Mrs. Stuart.

"I reckon I'm just going to stay at home by myself," said the young man, but with an anxious shadow stole into his smile.

"You might as well drop in and take a cup of tea with us. Bessie and I will be alone," said Mrs. Stuart, her natural grinning climbing over her blindness.

"Thanks," he said, with alacrity; "I don't mind if I do."

When the hall door was closed, the two women took their way to the back veranda.

"I don't want his peas," Bessie said, "I hate them."

"No, you don't," said her stepmother, "but you're going to take 'em, and you're going to behave civil to him when he comes on Sunday."

"I'm not," said the girl, but weakly streaked her "no."

"Don't be a nippy," said her mother. "You'll have him when you're married. And young Macallister's gone to Western Australia."

Sunday was ushered in with the singing of locusts. A cloudless blue sky dropped down from the heights to the horizon, and a hillside of grim gulls stood stark, as if benumbed by the multitude of voices filling the air.

Bessie sat on a white mailman gown and walked with her mother to church. Her hat was broad brimmed and deep down over her face, the lace touches of her gown and headgear seeming to belong to her as the petals do to a rose.

Ben Stevens watched her through the service, his eyes hiding the secret of his truancy that his half turned head would have revealed.

He walked down the road with them afterward—that little girl separated from him by Mrs. Stuart and a whole wide world of indifference.

He sat through a tea meal by her side and talked to her mother about a weed which spoiled the milk in the hot water of soda bread and currant buns.

And now he was watching the moon come up through the trees, while a sort of moonlight breeze was surging in his heart.

"Wouldn't you rather go to church?" asked Bessie.

"No," he answered and let his eyes begin his story.

"I believe I left the canary on the dairy wall," he said and stood up.

"Never mind," said Ben, rising to tower above her.

"But the mosquitoes," she faltered.

"Never mind," he said, and dropped his head to her level, blurring out a passionate love word into her ear.

"No—no—no!" she said.

"You're right," he said. "Now, aren't you? Oh, Bessie, I do love you so!"

A tall form emerged from the doorway.

"Shyness soon wears off," said Mrs. Stuart. "I suppose, Ben, you mean stealing my girl, hanging over her like this?"

"I love her," said the young man.

"When did you think of getting married?" asked Mrs. Stuart.

"Soon after Bessie likes," said Ben.

A Thrilling Experience.

A STORY TOLD BY A WELL-KNOWN SALVATION ARMY CAPTAIN.

HIS BODY BACKED FROM HEAD TO FOOT WITH RHEUMATISM AND SERIOUS PAINS—WOULD PERISH DEATH TO UNDERGO SUCH SUFFERING AGAIN.

It is the lot of but a limited number of people to enjoy the confidence of such an exceedingly large circle of friends and comrades as does Capt. John A. Brokenshire, who was recently interviewed by a Post reporter at the home of his parents at Rosedale, a pretty hamlet situated at the head of Balsam river in Victoria county, where the elder Mr. Brokenshire, who has reached the three score years and ten, has held the position of lockmaster for the past twenty-two years. Capt. Brokenshire, who was born in this country, is 33 years of age, is well known and highly respected throughout many of the leading cities and towns of Ontario.

During his seven years' service in Salvation Army work he has come in contact with a large number of people. He has been stationed at Toronto, Montreal, Peterboro, Ottawa, Morrisburg and minor places, and at one time was a member of a travelling S. A. band.

The army work has not, however, Brokenshire's own statement—"I had been slightly troubled with rheumatic pains for several years, and had to give up the army work on different occasions on account of my trouble. When stationed at Morrisburg, I became completely unfitted for work, as I suffered terribly with pain in the back of my neck, down my shoulder and arms and through my body. In fact I had pains in every muscle, and the pain in the back of my head to my toes. I could not bend my head forward if I got the whole of Canada to do so, and when in the only slight rest I got was with a large pillow under my shoulder, this letting my head hang backwards. I could not get up but had to roll or twist myself out of bed as my legs seemed to be effected. My medical adviser pronounced my trouble rheumatism and rheumatism combined, which he said had gone through my whole system. He prescribed for me but the medicine gave me no relief. I tried various other remedies but they were of no avail. Believing my case to be hopeless I determined to start for my home in Rosedale, but the jarring of the train caused such terrible agony that I was compelled to abandon the trip at Peterboro, where I was laid up for three weeks, when I finally made a Herculean effort and reached home. As my mother was an invalid, and an old man of 90 years of age when she saw me struggling with the aid of two heavy canes to walk from the carriage to the house. At home I received every possible attention and all the treatments that kind friends suggested, but I was constantly going from bed to bed, and in August, 1898, after many months of untold agony, I determined to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, having read so much in the news papers of the great benefit received by others from their use. To make sure of getting the genuine article I sent direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., and after taking two boxes I noticed a slight improvement in my condition which gave me some encouragement. I then took a third box, and after a few days, although I got through with the sixth I could go to bed and enjoy a good night's rest such as I had not done for a long time. I have since enjoyed better health than I am doing at present. Since my recovery I have induced several friends to take Pink Pills for various troubles and in each case they have effected cures."

The above is a voluntary and correct statement of the facts of my case and I think that any other man by reading this, receive the blessing that I have. If necessary I would make an affidavit to the above facts at any time—Lindsay, Ont., Post.

"I love her," said the young man.

"When did you think of getting married?" asked Mrs. Stuart.

"Soon after Bessie likes," said Ben.

"The end of the month 'd be a good

She set her mouth. "Then if you care for me that much I can ask you to do something for me."

"Any more thing, my girl?"

"I would give you up, couldn't you? Couldn't you? Couldn't you? Oh, Ben, I'm that miserable till you give me up and go and tell my mother that you don't want me! But, oh, Ben, don't let her know I told you! There's lots of other girls, and you don't want me, do you? Say you don't. Just say, 'I don't want you, Bessie.'"

He said, however, her mechanically, watching her hands twitching nervously at his shirt sleeve.

"I don't want you, Bessie," he said, "and, oh, how I wish I wouldn't have you if it's any your will!"

She stooped her head and her warm lips pressed a grateful kiss on his earth soiled wrist.

He told her mother about it, his eyes roaming restlessly about the parlor of Bessie's home.

On Sunday Bessie went to church and wore her big lace hat and sat beside her mother.

Ben was on the opposite side of the aisle and farther down the church, but he could have looked at her if he had wished, for when he turned his head and Bessie watched him, even at prayers.

When the service was over, he stood up, head and shoulders above every one, and it appeared as if Bessie's eyes were certainly on the door.

He raised his head and passed on, holding his head high—an unconscious diplomatist. Presently she saw him striding down the road as though it all belonged to him as well as the home on its side.

Two months went by. Ben took up his measure of days and dealt with them as well as he was able, but the evenings when the cabages and the peas were carrying on their lives with out him, when his washing up was done and the wind was stealing in the darkness around his home, then he staid to wonder how he was ever going to take tomorrow into his hands.

He always took it, however, and it was always coming.

"We'd have had a fire of an evening," he said two months after he had given her up.

There seemed a tremendous amount of irony in cutting firewood, to his simple mind.

A light footstep sounded behind him. He started, and then, down on an untended expression, then a rapturous glow on his face.

"Bessie!" he exclaimed. "Bessie!"

She tried to smile, but her face was white and afraid, and her lips quivered.

"I've come to see if you're all right," Ben," she said and was so unconcerned of her power over him that she trembled.

"I suppose—I suppose that you don't care about me yet, Ben. Do you? You don't care a bit, do you, Ben?"

"What do you want plaguing me for?" he burst out. "Can't you let me alone? Are you wanting me to lie over again?"

"I want the truth, Ben," she whispered.—London Telegraph.

Answered According to His Folly. Court attaches of Campbell county who have seen several years of service tell many anecdotes in which the late Judge Benches, although he was a regular contributor to the Cincinnati Enquirer. One of the best is that concerning the manner in which he disposed of an unruly drunken man who once interrupted his court proceedings.

The judge was at Alexandria, where the judge was holding court. The courthouse there is a representative country temple of justice, the doors opening upon a center aisle, which leads directly to the bench. On the particular morning in question, the judge, who had convened both swinging doors were suddenly opened wide and a man with a very unsteady gait came reeling down the aisle. When he had reached a point directly in front of his honor, he pitched forward, and landed, and about, "By G—d, judge, I'm a loss."

The judge, without moving a muscle in his placid countenance, turned to the sheriff and said quietly, "Mr. Sheriff, take this 'boss' to his stable for four days."

Dry Plate Photography. The first amateur pictures on dry plates were made something after the manner suggested by Charles Lamb's celebrated Chinaman, in obtaining roast pig. The Chinaman burned his house to roast his pig. The amateur took his camera to pieces to get his picture. The first hand camera was a pasteboard box containing one plate. A pinhole served as a lens and after the exposure of the plate the box was taken to the dark room, cut open, and the plate extracted. This was rather expensive picture making, and it was not long before a magazine camera was invented, and suddenly all the world began taking pictures.—Elizabeth Flint Wade in St. Nicholas.

Neighboring Comment. Uncle Ebenezer heard that city farmer that bought St. Brown's farm to play with bragging that his hens could him a quarter apple to raise.

Uncle Eben—"Ain't it funny how a man like be proud of being a darn fool!"—Lucianopolis Journal.

"I've come to have a bit of a talk to you, Ben," she said, and a new consciousness of her power over this big, hulking fellow armed her with a strength which was only born for the occasion and which would have brought a smile to her stepmother's face.

"I don't quite know how to begin," she said, "but—but I don't believe you care extra for me, do you, Ben? Not astonishingly much?"

"Don't I, though!" he burst out. "Look here, Bess, would you believe it, I've thought of you every moment of this blessed day. My word!"

HEALTHY, HAPPY WOMEN.

Pain and Weakness Banished through the use of Miltburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

It is sad to think that so many women suffer from Pain, Weakness, Heart Palpitation, Sinking Sensation, Nervousness, Sleeplessness—who could be restored to the full enjoyment of perfect health by a few boxes of Miltburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

There can be no question about the efficacy of this remedy. Thousands of women have found it to all that is claimed for it. Here is the testimony of Mrs. G. H. Wesley Street, Moncton, N. B.

"Before taking Miltburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I used to suffer untold agony from violent headaches, irregular action of the bowels, together with pains or spasms in various parts of my body."

Sometimes I felt so weak that I was unable to perform my domestic duties. However, I had to endure this worry and trouble, because all the remedies I tried failed to give me relief, until I happily heard of Miltburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I had only been taking them a short time when I felt greatly benefited. This encouraged me to continue their use until a complete cure was effected."

"I have not been troubled with a headache since taking these pills. They increased my appetite, invigorated my entire system, and gave me back my old time strength and vigor."

Take a Laxative Pill before retiring. "I will work while you sleep without a grip or gripe, and make you feel better in the morning. Price 25c. Sold by all druggists."

Mentally Unpleasant. Many are the trials encountered by the domestic man who, in time of domestic turmoil, is forced to visit an intelligence office.

"My dear," said Mr. Roberts, his youthful face flushed with heat and symptoms of irritation in his voice, "I really should prefer to be cooking myself rather than go to that intelligence office again."

"Have I secured a cook?" he went on. "No, I have not, Mrs. Roberts. I escaped from one dreadful creature, who even when I preferred to be cooking myself rather than go to that intelligence office again."

"I am trying to fill the position of cook in a family of four?"

"She looked at me as if she'd like to wither me with one blighting glance and said laughingly: 'I am trying to fill that of coachman in a family of two. I think you would do if you have proper recommendations.'—Youth's Companion.

He Obeyed Instructions. The Club Woman met an amusing story of a party of women who recently visited Pike's peak. A youth, still in loose breeches, although he wore a collar of extraordinary height and stiffness, was their guide, but his knowledge of the points of interest appeared to be slight.

Every few minutes he stood up and shouted the names of certain boulders and streams. When we were nearly at the top, he called out:

"On the right is the Lion's Mouth!"

"Why is it called the Lion's Mouth?" asked a skeptical lady who had peered him with a wary eye all the way.

"Aw, I dunno," said the lad, tired of being asked for information. "I was told to holler these names. I dunno why nothin. It's my job to holler, and so I holler."

RHEUMATISM. For this painful trouble, Griffith's Liniment is an infallible remedy. It penetrates and lubricates the joints, takes away all the stiffness and gives relief in a few minutes—wonders in chronic rheumatism cases.

E. W. East of Water street, Vancouver, B. C., writes: "I suffered from painful attack of rheumatism in his shoulders, and was unable to do my work. I could not take his arms. He applied Griffith's Liniment, and in a few minutes the pain had entirely left him. He says: 'It certainly is a great pain reliever.'"

Farragut's Opinion of Dewey.

Rear Admiral Dewey as a young officer impressed me as a self contained man with powerful native force. I often think of the remark made by Admiral Goldsborough to Farragut on the occasion of the visit of the latter to our ship. The two admirals were standing within a few feet of my table, and Dewey had stepped back to give an order to the orderly.

"Farragut," said Goldsborough, "Dewey will make his mark in the world if he ever gets an opportunity."

"Aye," answered Farragut, with the pleasant smile so becoming to his homely face, "and he will make the opportunity."

And Farragut was a true prophet.—Harper's Round Table.

Revenge. "Hurry up, there!" yelled the conductor to a man who had chased the car about a quarter of a mile. "We can't wait all day for you."

"Is this a Woodward avenue car?" asked the tall, thin man, who was panting like a tugboat after his long run.

"Yes," was the curt reply.

"That's right," said the thin man, "always speak the truth, and your neighbors will respect you."

And so saying he hurried around the corner, while the conductor came down from the car to look for a bribe.—Detroit Journal.

Getting an Opening. A man had a story about a gun which he delivered himself of upon all occasions.

At a dinner party one evening he writhed in his chair for an hour, waiting for a chance to introduce his story, but no opportunity presented itself. Finally he slipped a coin into the hand of a waiter and whispered:

"When you leave the room again, Jam the door."

DRUNKENNESS A DISEASE.

How Britain Will Try to Treat It Like Lunacy.

A New Law Now in Force—After Four Convictions the Person Will Be Kept as a Drunkard—He Will Then Be Committed to a Reformatory or Reformatory, Where He May Be Regarded as a Criminal Undergoing Sentence.

London, Jan. 4.—There came into force yesterday the first Act of Parliament attempting to deal with habitual drunkenness by establishing the principle that it is to be treated like lunacy, as a form of disease which the state must take cognizance of, with a view not only to the safety of society, but to the proper care of the patient. Under the new law, four convictions of drunkenness during 12 months bring the person concerned under the category of habitual drunkards and procure his commitment to a reformatory or reformatory where he may be regarded as a criminal undergoing sentence. The discipline at the reformatory will not be severe. The prisoners will have to work six hours daily, and will be provided with every comfort, including tobacco.

Wide Prevalence of Inebriety. Dr. Norman Kerr, whose book, "Inebriety or Narcomania," has had much to do in bringing about the passage of the Act, spoke freely yesterday in giving his views on the question. He maintains that inebriety is much more widely prevalent among the upper classes of England than is generally supposed. "People do not get drunk at dinner parties and all that sort of thing," he said, "but it does not follow that they do not get sober when they get home. What is called drunkenness is only one form of inebriety, or narcomania—the habit of taking narcotics. People may take little or no liquor, and yet be inebriated by such narcotics as chloral, morphia, chlorodyne, sulphonal and others equally dangerous. This is especially true of women, some of them of the highest culture and refinement. "The upper classes have facilities for secret indulgence which the lower have not. Yet even among the lowest class there are plenty of habitual drunkards who never fall into the hands of the police.

Need of Further Legislation. "Neither the new law nor any other can prevent these persons from committing suicide by drinking themselves to death. They may ruin themselves and become burdens on the state, as paupers, prisoners or lunatics, casting the support of their families on the public, yet neither the family that has to suffer nor the state that has to pay has any power to intervene.

The burden of Dr. Kerr's further remarks was the necessity for the legalizing of the cure for inebriety by means of a curative home, the rich paying their way, the poor receiving treatment gratis. He added that there was no specific cure for drunkenness, although 400 had been put forth. Most cases, however, he said, would give way to seclusion, medical treatment being for the most part directed to a restoration of the paralyzed will power.

THE MARCH FROM UGANDA.

Major Martley's Expedition Will Likely Be a Bloodless One.

London, Jan. 4.—Major Martley's expedition from Uganda to Khartoum is not likely to involve any fighting. He is expected to leave from an officer who has for some years been serving on the Nile in the extreme north of Unyoro that the work of the expedition is merely the establishment of a postal station of certain posts, some of which were before abandoned in troublous times.

Dieth, which is on the line of march, was visited by British troops in 1891, and strong posts had been established at Mru, Fowara and Jajao. The last named place several other posts were abandoned during the last expedition of the Sudanese mutineers which broke out in October, 1897.

Jajao has been reoccupied, and the expedition is pushing northward along the Nile through what used to be a Deshah place of influence. As for the Sudanese mutineers, they have been practically wiped out.

DIETPE STEAMER WRECKED.

Five of the Crew of the Channel Steamer Angers Were Drowned.

London, Jan. 4.—Incoming steamers at different ports report that the freighter continues along the British coast and is carrying a cargo of 1,589 tons, trading between New Haven and Dieppe, has been wrecked at the entrance to Dieppe harbor. Five of her crew were drowned. Her cargo is washing ashore.

Details received regarding the wreck of the steamer at the entrance of Dieppe harbor show that she was a local cargo boat, and crashed into the end of the jetty at midnight, partly destroying it. The captain and 14 of the crew succeeded in climbing the side of the jetty, which was cut off from the shore. They remained there all night long and their lives brought about in the morning. A man perished from exhaustion and four men were drowned in the engine room.

Disturbances in China.

London, Jan. 4.—According to a despatch from Hankow to the Morning Post, there are alarming reports from the Yangtze River region. The disturbances are increasing in the Provinces of Szechuan, Hunan and Hupe.

The Dowager Empress. It is further asserted, is curtailing the authority of viceroys and especially in the Yangtze and Hankow districts.

Another Muscovite Meeting. Moscow, Russia, Jan. 4.—News has been received from the military governor of Forgham Province, Turkistan, that the Russian troops in that region are plotting another mutiny.

Thousands Were Killed.

Cairo, Jan. 4.—According to a news from Y. Sen. Abdullah, the commander of the Turkish troops in Arabia, is officially reported to have gained a complete victory over the rebels on Nov.

17, after desperate fighting, in which thousands were killed.

It is estimated that during the famine in the west of Yunnan 15,000 perished in Sana and 200,000 in the country districts.

Newly Stood by Her for 27 Hours Without Avail.

Queensdown, Jan. 4.—The British steamer Newby, Capt. Clark, from Philadelphia on Dec. 16, for this port, has arrived here and reported having lost the British steamer Dart, Captain Clark, from Philadelphia, on Dec. 18, for London, on Dec. 20, in latitude 49 north and longitude 18 west, with her propeller carried away. The Newby towed the Dart for an hour, after which the latter parted. Although the Newby stood by the Dart for 27 hours, she was unable to get another hauler on board, owing to the terrible weather prevailing, and, for her own safety, was obliged to proceed, leaving the Dart in a helpless condition. It was the cabin of the Newby was flooded and much interior damage was done, her boats were stove in, and her deckwork was badly injured. The second mate and a seaman of the Newby were injured, all the provisions on board were destroyed and the crew lost part of their clothing.

FAREWELL TO FREE AMERICA.

The Paris Times Reads President McKinley a Lesson.

New York, Jan. 4.—A despatch to the Times from Paris says: The Temps tonight draws a gloomy picture of the future of the United States. It says that the United States cannot hide the fact that they have said good-bye forever to the ideal of the republic. They are now with the regular standing army and laughed at the heavy burdens imposed upon the nations of the eastern continent by their interference in Mexico.

"There is not a Democrat, not a friend of the principles that regulate modern society," continues the Temps, "that does not desire the incorporation with a spirit of conquest of territories and expansion of a democracy that hitherto has been peaceful and liberal."

"President McKinley may say farewell for free America, to the era peace and good-will, reforms, economy, internal progress and self-government."

No Liberal Party in Britain.

London, Jan. 4.—The Duke of Argyll, in reply to a query whether there was any hope of a Liberal party in this country, has written to a correspondent as follows: "You give the title of the Liberal party to men who do not and never will represent you. You give it to all the best men of the Liberal party, with whom I served for 30 years, revolted from Mr. Gladstone's new Irish policy of land reform. Nothing is more certain to still smaller fragments are not the Liberal party. They have never been held together by any principle, but only by a principle capable of definition, and their fate now is the legitimate result of their unhappy origin."

A Tragic Mistake.

Johannesburg, S.A.R., Jan. 4.—During last night Mrs. Mackintosh, wife of the late manager of E. K. Street, died of a heart attack. She was 40 years of age and was the wife of a well-known man. She was in the house, and awakened her husband. He went round, saw nobody, and returned to her room, still feeling the whole of the impression that there were thieves in the house, and awakened her husband. He sat on a seat by the window Mr. Mackintosh again awoke, and seeing a head at the window, he went to the door and saw his wife, who had died. He immediately afterward he discovered the terrible mistake he had made. Mr. Mackintosh was arrested and immediately released on bail.

Jamaica Comes In.

Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 4.—Jamaica has succumbed to Canada's earnest solicitations to join the penny postal system. The Jamaica Government acknowledges that the sacrifice is not great, seeing that the postal business with Canada last year amounted to only £11 odd.

The Government, however, is still reluctant respecting the Imperial penny postage. In official quarters it is said that the other West Indian colonies have consented to adopt the system, and that they have received Imperial grants.

To Lynch "Jack the Ripper."

Vienna, Jan. 4.—Last night another "Jack the Ripper" murder was committed in the city. The victim was a woman named Shikla. The murderer, a butcher's apprentice, was caught as he was escaping from the house, and he was taken to the police station. He was rescued by the police, and he now lies in a police station, feigning unconsciousness. The murderer is the same who murdered a woman named Hofer under similar circumstances Christmas Eve.

Lord Curzon at Calcutta.

Calcutta, Jan. 4.—The new Viceroy of India, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, and Lady Curzon arrived here at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and were received by the Government officials and the military and civil authorities at Howrah Station. The Viceroy was met by a large number of officials and a guard of honor and gave the royal salute.

Kruger Preached.

Johannesburg, Jan. 4.—Mr. Kruger preached in Pretoria before the three united Dutch churches. He declared the reason that so few Dutch people were in the Transvaal was that the Lord was with the nation. Mr. Kruger's health is improving.

Norwegian Barque Wrecked.

Falmouth, Eng., Jan. 4.—The Norwegian barque Sprance, Captain Nielsen, which sailed from Cardiff on Dec. 30 for Falmouth, was wrecked on St. Agnes, the southernmost of the Solly Islands. The crew is missing.

A Bloodless Duel.

Buda-Pesth, Jan. 4.—The duel between M. Horvath, a member of the Lower House of the Hungarian Diet, and Baron Pandly, the Premier, took place yesterday morning. Pistols were the weapons used. The duel was bloodless.

Business Before Pleasure.

They were performers in the amateur theatricals. During the progress of the play at one time, while their presence was not needed on the stage, they sat together behind the scenes. She looked beautiful indeed in old fashioned gown and powdered hair, and he, in court costume of more than a century ago, was the beau ideal of a cavalier.

For some time he had been very attentive to her, and although people had frequently remarked upon his devotion, he had not come to the point of proposing, but as they sat behind the scenes he felt that an opportune moment had arrived.

"Marie," he said, "you may not have perceived my liking, but I cannot delay. I—I want to ask you to—be—"

Just then the prompter called the girl's name, but he never stirred.

"That's your cue," faltered the interrupted lover.

"Yes," she answered calmly enough, laying her head on his arm, "but never mind the cue. You seemed very earnest just now, and I want you to go on. What were you going to say?"—Pearson's Weekly.

Washington's Farewell to His Officers.

On Dec. 4 the officers of the army met in Franco's tavern to bid their chief farewell. Washington, as he rose and faced them, could not control his voice. He lifted a glass of wine and said, "With a heart full of love and gratitude, I now take my leave of you, most devotedly wishing that your latter days may be as prosperous and happy as your former ones have been glorious and honorable." They drank in silence, and Washington said, "I cannot count on each of you and take my leave, but shall be obliged if you will come and take me by the hand." Up they came, one by one, and by one Washington, his eyes filled with tears, embraced them and said farewell. From the men they followed him to the ferry, where he entered his barge. As the boat moved away he rose and lifted his hat. His officers returned the salute in silence, and all was over.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge in Scribner's.

Black Sea Water Is Poison.

The explorations of the Russian scientist Andrusow have established a very curious fact. The Black sea, which in some parts has a depth of more than 6,000 feet, is poisoned by sulphuretted hydrogen wherever the water is deeper than 1,500 feet. The cause of the curious fact that there is no organic life below that depth, excepting perhaps some bacteria of very low order, impregnated with sulphur. The causes for this phenomenon are explained by the quick outflow of the water from the Bosphorus, which salt water coming from the Mediterranean enters through a deeper current into the depths of the Black sea. The waters on the surface are, therefore, controlled almost by horizontal currents of considerable force, and the currents which might carry the noxious gases from the bottom to the surface and fresh oxygen from the surface to the bottom are hardly ever noticeable. The water at great depths is now so saturated with sulphuric gas that the disintegration of organic matter is sinking to the bottom by reason of its weight that no fish or other living creatures can exist below a stated depth.—Philadelphia Record.

The Death of Carlyle.

Uncle had not been considered seriously ill more than about a fortnight or so before the end, writes Carlyle's nephew, John C. Aiken, in the Atlantic. The vital spark of life toward the last days kept flickering in a way that extraordinary that the doctor declared he had never met such tenacity of life and vitality in the whole course of his varied London and other experience.

While lying in a corner of an uncomfortable bed his mind seemed to wander back to old Anna's memories of his over loved ones and their surroundings, his mother holding her supping bowl, surrounded by a troop of young folk, familiar faces not very greatly less dear to him. He died full of years, with his weary task of world's work well and nobly done, and leaves no regret behind him who does not love to review his life as

THE REV. JOHN S. QUINN

APPOINTED TO CHESTERVILLE.

His Grace Archbishop Gauthier has been pleased to appoint Rev. Father Quinn of Marysville to the charge of the congregation of Chesterville, Dundas Co., Rev. Father O'Connor of Chesterville being transferred to Marysville. It was with genuine regret that the people of this district heard that Father Quinn was to sever his connection with his present charge. When the announcement was made in St. Mary's church on Friday last the congregation was visibly affected and numerous were the expressions of regret at his proposed departure.

Rev. John S. Quinn was born at Ballindine, Co. Mayo, Ireland, on May 23rd, 1861. He was educated at St. Jarlath College, Tuam, and at St. Patrick's College, Maynooth, and completed his ecclesiastical studies at the Grand Seminary, Montreal. He came to Canada in October 1884, and was appointed to the priesthood at Belleville on August 24th, 1886. He immediately entered upon active duty first as assistant to Rev. Wm. McDonald, Glen Nevis, Glengarry, and subsequently as assistant to Rev. Father Davis of Madoc. Leaving Madoc he was for sixteen months an assistant in St. Mary's cathedral, Kingston. He was

WATCH YOUR COWS.

Dear Sirs,—Having had wonderful success with your Liniment with my stock, etc., I feel it my duty to write you in behalf of same. Our cattle were troubled with caked legs, they were so badly caked we thought they would lose the use of them, but as usual your Douglas' Egyptian Liniment was applied twice, and in twenty-four hours we could milk as well as ever. When anything in our home or outhouses goes wrong your Liniment is called for at once, it never has failed. Hoping this letter may assist you in putting forward the greatest Liniment on sale.

I remain, yours truly,
Sheffield, Ont. ROBERT HARRNESS.

NAPANEE HILLS.

Jan. 5.—The Municipal election brought every body out. Peter McPherson ran for councilor; out of one hundred votes polled here he secured 95. He is evidently the right man in the right place.

James Kehoe, foreman at Cement works, had a terrible fall in the mill on Sunday, at present he is confined to the house under the doctor's care.

On Wednesday, Dec. 28, at the residence of R. Pybus his daughter Minnie was married to J. Murphy; only the friends of the family were present.

There is a good deal of sickness here.

Hugh Davey and family are all ill with la grippe. T. Brown and J. Asselstine are laid up with colds. Marshall Granger is a little better. Miss Maggie Russell is not gaining.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood left for their home on Saturday last. They came to spend the holidays with Mrs. Wood's mother Mrs. Lott. Their little daughter Henrietta was very ill during their stay here; their home is in Warner, N.

School opened on Tuesday under the management of Miss Reid as principal and Miss Lund assistant. A new porch has been built in front of the school house.

MELROSE.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Ray, who have been visiting at his father's, have returned to their home in Quebec.

A quiet wedding took place at Wm. Badgley's on Monday of last week when his sister-in-law, Miss Nellie Moore, was united in marriage to Sidney A. Badgley. The Melrose band intended to serenade them but they could not find out when the event took place.

The meeting of the Executive committee of the Sabbath schools of Tyendinaga was held at the Melrose Methodist church on the 9th inst.

A number of young people of Melrose attended the party at Mr. Howat's on Tuesday evening and spent a very enjoyable evening.

A very pleasant event took place at the residence of George Sherman on Wednesday last when his second daughter, Miss Alice, was united in marriage to James Cole. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents.

The organist of the Home Circle has been visiting Melrose lodge and held a meeting for the purpose of taking in new members on Monday last.

The weather has undergone quite a change since last week Jack Frost having taken the place of rain.

DICK'S GUEST.

To get money and to keep it, according to Richard Whinstone's catechism, were the two chief ends of man.

He was a single man on principle. It was the right thing economically, and therefore right indubitably.

To one person in the world Richard Whinstone was generous, and that was his dear friend, Richard Whinstone.

Richard Whinstone had done a good day's work. He had made one or two profitable shaves. He had sold up the Widow Marten and turned her and her six children out of doors for no money.

KIDNEY CURE

with his teeth and then sucked the marrow.

"Now for a punch!" he cried.

"There is no hot water," Richard ventured to say.

"Water? Who asked for water? Bring me a lemon, some sugar and a kettle."

The kettle was placed on the fire. The stranger filled it with brandy, adding lemon and sugar to suit his taste.

As the liquor boiled over it caught fire, setting the whole in a blaze.

Richard jumped up to take it off. The stranger caught his arm and lunged him back as if he had been a child in a school of a substantial citizen of 200 pounds.

"What are you about?" he exclaimed.

"The punch is doing well enough."

"You're afraid the house might be burned down?"

"Both the house!" replied the little man. "There's no danger."

"Your health, Dick," at length he said, raising the kettle all blazing to his lips and drank like a demon.

"And now, Dick, it's your turn," he said, after a long breath. "You must drink my health now."

Richard drew back.

"The stranger looked at him, and then said: 'Poor Dick took a single gulp. He left the skin of his mouth on the brim of the kettle, his throat was scorched as with liquid fire and his hair was singed by the blaze.'

"And now to business," said the stranger, resuming his seat and leaving Dick to sit or stand as he chose.

"You knew John Walter, I believe?"

"Yes," answered Richard. "I once knew a person of that name."

"You and he went to California together?"

Richard acknowledged the fact.

"You made money, and he didn't?"

"I believe I was the more fortunate of the two."

"You and he started to return together, and he died at San Francisco?"

Richard bowed.

"His wife and children are now destitute, the stranger persisted."

"I can't help that."

"Of course not. It was his boy who gave the good advice to today. I hope the young scamp will profit by it."

The scene with the little beggar, Richard was quite sure, had been witnessed by no one. How the stranger had found out was past comprehension.

"You're quite sure John Walter died poor?" the stranger went on.

"Oh, quite," said Richard. "I paid his funeral expenses myself."

"That's a lie!" retorted the little man. "They were paid by the public."

It's another lie that he died poor. He had $20,000 with him when you stole!"

"And defy you to prove it!"

"Prove it! What effrontery! Why, I saw you do it!"

"It's false! There was nobody present!"

"Be careful, Dick, or you'll commit yourself. I saw you do another thing."

Richard sank shivering into a chair, but said nothing.

"John Walter would have survived his illness, but you put poison in his medicine."

A sudden fury took possession of Richard Whinstone when he saw the secret of his life in another's keeping. The carving knife lay within his reach.

He seized it and, springing on the stranger, with a desperate plunge sought to bury the blade in his heart, but it glanced as from plate armor and in an instant the little man was on his feet.

"Oh, ho! That's your game, is it?"

And with a trip that sent his heels spinning in the air Richard was thrown headlong with a force that shook the house to its foundation. The club foot was planted on his stomach, and what a horrible ugly foot it was! It was cloth like the hoof of an ox and seemed to weigh a ton.

SAVE THE MOTHERS

Dodd's Kidney Pills Their Only Safety in Female Diseases.

You have seen a flower nipped by frost, fade and die in the flush of its beauty. That is how women die when attacked by any of the diseases peculiar to their sex.

Woman's burdens are woefully heavy. Her sufferings are agonizing. Her patience is grand. Disease mingles upon her. The light dies out of her eyes, her steps become slow and dragging; she loses flesh; grows sallow, listless, droops like a flower. Then she dies. Her family is left to the cold mercy of the world.

Mother's death! What a piteous phrase! What sufferings have been endured before it was used. Why should mothers, wives, sisters suffer so? They need not. Dodd's Kidney Pills will quickly and thoroughly cure all cases of Female Weakness. They never fail. They give health, strength, courage: a new lease of life.

"You are a—"

"Pray keep a civil tongue in your head and come along," said the hero.

Richard faintly.

While he came to himself, day was breaking. The old housekeeper, who had found him groaning and sprawling on the floor, had with much difficulty shaken him into consciousness. She assisted him to bed, but Richard never was himself again. The effort of pig had brought on a fever, of which he died in eight days. His last rational act was the execution of a will, by which he left the bulk of his fortune to John Walter's widow and child, which, after all, was a simple act of justice, for the demon of enmity had told the truth.—Cincinnati Post.

When Spurgeon First Preached.

I must have been a singular looking youth on wet evenings, for I walked three, five or even eight miles out and back again to my preaching work, and when it rained I dressed myself in waterproof leggings and a mackintosh coat and a hat with a waterproof covering, and I carried a dark lantern to show me the way across the fields. I am sure that I greatly profited by those early services for my Lord. How many times I enjoyed preaching the gospel in a farmer's kitchen, or in a cottage, or in a barn! Perhaps many people came to hear me because I was then only a boy. In my young days I fear that I said many odd things and made many mistakes. I have used my audience was not hypocritical, and no newspaper writers dogged my heels. So I had a happy training school in which by continual practice I attained such a degree of ready speech as I now possess.—Spurgeon's Autobiography.

Scandalous.

Mrs. Witherly.—They say Mrs. Dickson has recently become very economical.

Mrs. Larrison.—Yes, she's carrying it to an extreme, it seems to me. I hear that she's even trying to get her husband to let his whiskers grow so as to save laundry bills.—New York World.

It Was Too Much.

"Your honor," said Boston Pete, almost tearfully, "it's the newspaper publicity that I hate about this thing. They say that I 'gime' I will be apprehended, then 'incarcerated,' perhaps even in 'durance vile.' But, your honor, for a man who has never demeaned himself by work this expression, 'caught in the act,' is too much. And the wretch hid his face.—Kansas City Star.

Important to Athletes.

Mr. Mack White, the well-known trainer for the football club, writes: "I consider the 'Globe' an excellent medium for athletes or those taking part in sports, with the best advice, and can be relied upon for the latest news, and all forms of swelling and inflammation of the joints, 25c."

FATHER AND SON KILLED.

Ottawa, January 7.—Mr. Cowan, treasurer of the County of Carleton, about 70 years of age, and his son, Holmes Cowan, 48 years of age, were instantly killed this morning at the crossing of the Canada Atlantic and Parry Sound railway at Ottawa East. The two men were going to Ottawa to attend the funeral of the son of Mr. O'Gara, Q.C., Police Magistrate of Ottawa, who was buried this morning.

The two men were going to Ottawa to attend the funeral of the son of Mr. O'Gara, Q.C., Police Magistrate of Ottawa, who was buried this morning.

The sleigh in which the party was seated was run into by a passenger train. It is supposed that on account of the driving snow the driver did not see its approach. Death was instantaneous in the case of Mr. Cowan and his son, and although the coachman still lives he is more cut and mangled than the dead men. This point has always been regarded as dangerous.

GLORIOUS NEWS

Comes from Dr. D.B. Cargile, of Washita, I.T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters have cured Mrs. Bower of scrofula, which had been in her system for many years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help, but her cure is complete and her health is restored."

This shows what thousands have proved,—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the only one that cures skin troubles, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion and builds up the strength. Only 30 cents. Sold by all Druggists, every bottle guaranteed.

John R. Ketcheson, clerk of Madoc township, is 81 years of age. He has been in active municipal life for 49 years.

A TERRIBLE EXPLOSION.

London, Eng., Jan. 7.—A big boiler, while being lifted in Hewitt's ship building yard at Barking, a town seven miles from here, burst yesterday and the superintendent, engineer and eight men were killed. About forty persons were injured, some fatally.

The bodies of the dead were frightfully mutilated. The whole ship building works were wrecked. A lad was thrown 30 yards from the scene of the disaster.

A number of men and boys are missing. The windows in houses half a mile away were shattered. The terrific force of the explosion may be judged from the fact that one of the huge plates of iron was ploughed through a building a quarter of a mile distant and the debris was hurled hundreds of yards in all directions.

The factory itself, which covered several acres, was practically razed and all the dwellings and sheds in its immediate vicinity were to all intents and purposes wrecked. Telegraph and telephone wires were blown down on all sides.

Distressing scenes were witnessed among the workmen's wives and other relatives of the employees.

Many men and women are almost within the deadly grasp of consumption. Although its fatal hand is unseen, its presence is made known by unmistakable symptoms. Cough, chest pain, loss of appetite, leads to consumption. A stubborn cough, sore throat, pains in the chest, emaciation, bleeding at the lungs, loss of flesh and general weakness are warning signs that this relentless disease is about to gather in a victim.

A remedy for all the diseases which, if neglected or badly treated, lead up to consumption, is found in

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It builds up the weak places and fortifies the system against the onslaughts of disease. It helps the appetite, assists digestion, is an aid to the proper assimilation of food, and cleanses the blood of all its impurities. It is a strictly temperance medicine, containing not an atom of whisky or alcohol in any form.

Your medicine is the best I have ever taken," writes Mrs. Jennie Dugan, of Vanhook, Ind. "I had a cough that I had to be in bed all the time. My husband thought I had consumption. I wanted me to get a doctor, but I told him it was unnecessary. I had a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and I had taken one bottle of the cough stopped and I have since had no signs of its returning."

Some Foot Fitters These.

Slater "Foot-Form" Shape.

This shape is an old favorite, the most comfortable and foot-fitting yet produced. It is on the English style of last, with a rounded curve on outer edge of sole, tapering inward to a narrow point at the toe, which is flat and comparatively soft, though boxed with a fairly stiff leather. A feature of the "Foot-Form" is that it will fit a large foot comfortably with a shoe which seems smaller than the foot, this effect being secured by the ingenious curve which follows the line of the foot, but ends in a deceptive point. It has all the fit and comfort of a broad-toed shoe, and the man who wears the right size should never have corns. Laced, Buttoned, Congress, Imitation Button Congress, and Oxford. All colors, 14 sizes, widths B to E. Goodyear Welted, Slater method. $3.00, $4.00 and $5.00.

The Slater "Commonsense" Shape.

Business men should wear this shoe for its sensible, high grade, made-to-order appearance. It is the most comfortable of all the American models, tapering very little in width from across ball of foot to toe, which is round and full, but not high, with a box plant and roomy, without being clumsy or wide looking, as a square-toed shoe of equal size would be. The "Commonsense" is a man's shoe, which will be best appreciated by those who buy shoes for foot-wear and comfort first, style and fashion freaks last. Laced, Buttoned, Congress, Imitation Button Congress, all leathers, all colors, 14 sizes, 6 widths. Goodyear Welted—$3, $4 and $5.

The Slater "Natural" Shape.

A new comfort shoe without clumsy looking toe. Roomy but neat, fitting a broad foot easily while making it look stylish and narrow. A good shoe for a foot that has been "pinched" by narrow pointed shoes, Laced, Buttoned, Congress, Imitation Button Congress. In 14 sizes, 5 widths, all colors—Goodyear Welted. $3, $4 and $5.

Slater "Bulldog" Shape.

An English fashion freak—relief for corny toes cramped into a bunch by narrow shoes. The long and stiffly boxed tip gives ease. "Foot-form" shape only. Laced, Buttoned, Congress, Imitation Buttoned Congress, and Low Cut Laced. Light Medium and Dark Tan, Seal Brown, Wine and Black. All sizes and widths. Goodyear Welted—$3.00, $4.00 and $5.00.

The Slater "Aristocrat" Shape.

Narrower than the "Bean-Ideal" with same straight outside line of sole (American type) high, stiff, box toe without ridge, rounded and moderately full at point. The characteristic of this shoe is its stylish effect, which has made it a favorite with Parisian wearers, twice as many pairs of this shape as of any other being sold by the Slater Shoe Agency, Avenue de l'Opéra, Paris. It is particularly suited to young men who dress well, and realize that the finishing touch consists in wearing a shoe which has in its shape that peculiar atmosphere of style and slenderness which marks the "Aristocrat." Laced, Buttoned, Congress, Oxford, all leathers, all colors, 14 sizes, Goodyear Welted, Slater Method. $3.00, $4.00 and $5.00.

The Slater "Flat Tread" Shape.

The tread of certain feet is flatter than that of others, shorter from heel to ball of foot, longer from that to tips of toes. Feet like these are powerful and not easily wearied, but much of their strength is lost in the ordinary shoe, the sole of which curves sharply upwards, bringing all the strain of a flat foot on the toes, and bending it unnaturally at the ball. 14 sizes, 5 widths, all colors, Laced, Congress, and Oxford. Goodyear Welted—Slater method. $3, $4 and $5.

MAN has been wonderfully and curiously made, but his feet were never intended to be the curiosities which many of them are.

Modern footwear (read foot-prisons) has transformed his feet from sources of comfort and support to painful, distorted nerve centres.

They have been forced into shoes modelled on ideal lasts, the conceptions of workers in wood, who never studied the peculiarities of feet.

To complete the work of destruction these "ideal" shoes (save the mark) are varnished with waxy dressings which close up the pores of the leather, and in these dank, ill-fitting dungeons, man's feet have sweltered and absorbed poisons thrown off by perspiration, which should have escaped through the leather pores plugged with wax and varnish.

Then came the "Slater shoe" made to fit these distorted feet and to preserve the shapes of the feet that remain normal.

Every kind of men's feet were studied—a general average of classified distortions was struck and after months of study special lasts were made modelled to fit real human feet not merely the ideal of a last designer's conception.

Allowances for style and changing fashions must be made but the interior—foot shape—of the "Slater Shoe" never varies—like a room that may look longer or narrower—larger or smaller according as it is furnished and decorated—but it is always the same sized and shaped room.

After the shapes had been selected, the dressing was studied. You could not live in a house with the doors and windows all sealed up.

Neither can your foot remain healthy in a shoe coated and air proof with the wax and varnish of common dressings.

"Slater Shoe Polish" is made to protect "Slater Shoes" and the feet they cover.

It is a thin oily fluid that sinks into the leather, feeds its fibres, slakes its thirst—the plague of fine leather—and leaves a fine powder (not a wax paste that cracks the leather as soon as it is thick enough) that burnishes the actual leather like emery does steel.

These then are the homes in which you are invited to comfortably install feet with corns, or bunions or bad nails or calloused soles or painful joints, and they fit the first time they are worn, and always after, because the shrink and stretch has been forever taken out of them by remaining six days on their lasts. (N. B.—Common Shoes are only on the lasts one day.)

Matchless, footfitting, Goodyear welted—tackless, lumpsless soles.—

The Slater "Bean Ideal" Shape.

—A shoe that looks slender but fits a comparatively wide foot—comfortable for long spreading toes. The ridge toe, boxed with solid sole leather gives greater room and cannot break down. Made in Laced, Buttoned, Congress, Imitation Button Congress and Oxford. All leathers—all colors—14 sizes, 5 widths, Goodyear Welt—Slater Method. $3, $4 and $5.

The Slater "Dandy" Shape.

Won't fit as many feet as would like to wear it for its appearance, but for those who find comfort in this shape it is slender and modish in appearance, with sole curving upward towards toe, and long, narrow, but not sharp pointed box. Grace in its every curve—style in its every line—the most elegant conception amongst this season's designs. Laced, Buttoned, Congress, Imitation Buttoned Congress and Oxford. All leathers, all colors, 14 sizes, widths C to E, Goodyear Welted, Slater Method. $3.00, $4.00 and $5.00.

The Slater "Broadfoot" Shape.

Shaped for short thick feet, wide English model, broad and full throughout, wide tread, flat, thick sole, and stoutly stitched. A masculine shoe for portly men. Built solely for easy walking, foot comfort and hard wear though of fine materials. Laced and congress; colored and black. All sizes and widths. Goodyear Welted. Slater Method.

The Slater "Arrow Point" Shape.

The extreme of American fashion, a shoe that fits feet comfortably, yet if considerable allowance is made for the length a moderately broad foot may wear it. The toe should not reach within an inch of the point. Most other shoes of this style break down across the toe, on account of pressure on the hollow portion, and the "Arrow Point" is specially constructed to overcome this, while permitting the free use of toe joints. Laced, Buttoned, Congress, Imitation Button Congress, Oxford. All leathers, all colors, 14 sizes, 6 widths, Goodyear Welted, Slater method. $3.00, $4.00 and $5.00.

The "Juvenile" Slater Shoe.

The makers of Slater Shoes have designed and made a line of shoes to protect young developing feet. It is in youth that the greatest injury is done to feet and the worst ills contracted. A shoe too short for a tender foot will produce a bunion in a couple of days, and it stays for life. The Slater "Juvenile" shoe fits young feet perfectly, is as well made as its elders, Goodyear Welted, Slater method, price $2.00 and $2.50.

DEATH OF MRS. JAMES N. SANDERSON OF NORTHPORT.

A correspondent writing from Northport says: "A very sad occurrence took place here on Saturday in the death of Elva, the dearly beloved wife of James N. Sanderson, of this place after a short illness. Doctors Pearson and Curry did everything that medical skill could suggest to save her life but it soon became evident that God was claiming her as his own. Deceased, who was twenty-nine years of age, was the daughter of Thos. Mills and to her parents she proved a most dutiful daughter. At the age of twenty-one she was married to James Nelson Sanderson, merchant, of Northport, formerly of Napanee and more recently a clerk in the store of B. Cryan. During her youth she was noted for exceeding cheerfulness and she was a great favorite with her young companions, and in later years she was held in the highest esteem and affection by all. At the age of twenty she took a firm stand for Christ and in that stand she never faltered. She was an enthusiastic and untiring church worker. In the home she was an ideal woman. The funeral services were conducted Tuesday by Rev. A. J. H. Strike and A. R. Brown in the church which was well attended with such great regularity and at which she had been a member since before her death. A large concourse of friends and neighbors were in attendance. The floral tributes surpassed any ever before seen in the village, upon such an occasion. The remains were placed in the vault of the Picton cemetery. It is unnecessary to add that the whole community extended to the sorrowing husband and relatives their heartfelt sympathy."

should be kept ready.
Messrs Douglas & Co., Napanee.
Dear Sirs,—Having had wonderful success with your Liniment with my stock, etc., I feel it my duty to write you in behalf of same. Our cattle were troubled with caked lags, they were so badly caked, we thought they would lose the use of them, but as usual your Douglas' Egyptian Liniment was applied twice, and in twenty-four hours we could milk as well as ever. When anything in our home or stables goes wrong your Liniment is called for at once, it never has failed. Hoping this letter may assist you in putting forward the greatest Liniment on sale.
I remain, yours truly,
Sheffield, Ont. ROBERT HARKNESS.

A MILE FLOAT BRIDGE.

Mr. Campbell, provincial road instructor, returned from Ameliasburg township, and reports the Belleville authorities discussing the construction of a connection between Belleville and Duff's Island. At present the settlers there have to travel away to the end of the island, which is shaped elliptically, to reach the mainland, and then travel parallel to the way they came to reach the Belleville market, a drive of ten miles. Mr. Campbell advised the construction of a float bridge one mile long, across the intervening muskeg, which will cost $3,000. This will take seven miles off the trip. Accordingly tenders are advertised for to-day, and the work will be completed before the frost leaves the grounds—Toronto World.

DR. CHINQUY DEAD.

Montreal, Jan. 16—Rev. Dr. Chiniquy died at 10 o'clock this morning.
Rev. Charles Paschal, Telephone Chiniquy was born at Kamouraska, Quebec, on July 30, 1850 was educated at the Quebec Seminary, and was ordained to the Roman Catholic priesthood in 1881. After serving as vicar of curate at St. Roch, Quebec, at Beauport and at Kamouraska, he established the first temperance society in Quebec. From this time he became a travelling apostle of temperance. In 1891 he was invited to Chicago with a view of turning the tide of French, Belgian, German and Canadian immigration to Illinois, and he shortly afterwards formed a Roman Catholic colony at St. Anne, Kankakee. In September 1898 he succeeded the Rev. Canon Scholastic Church and was afterwards received in the Presbyterian Church and ordained, later on being given the honorary degree of D. D. by the University of Chicago.
His published works are: "Fifty years in the Church of Rome," "The priest, the woman, the confessional," "Papal Holiness," "The Roman Church, the Enemy of the Virgin Mary and of Jesus Christ," and "The Persecution of Dr. Newman in the light of History, the Scriptures, Common Sense, and of His Own Declarations."

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH SHANNONVILLE.

The annual business meeting of the congregation of the Presbyterian Church, Shannonville, was held on Thursday, Jan. 9th. Donald MacLennan, the treasurer, gave his report which was very encouraging. Rev. D. O. McArthur, pastor, congratulating the congregation on their splendid financial standing. The W. F. M. Society had also done noble work during the year. The Sabbath School, under the superintendence of Mr. Clazie, with his efficient staff of teachers, deserved much praise for its success. The Christmas entertainment given by the scholars was highly applauded, as the finest programme presented to the public during the season. On Thursday evening the Pastor conducts a bible reading. These meetings are well attended, and profitable to old and young. During the four and a half years stay among us, Rev. Mr. McArthur has endeared himself to the hearts of his people and as Sunday after Sunday we listen to his eloquent sermons and teachings, we know that he is surely uplifting our souls to God. To him and his estimable wife now sorrowing over the death of their beloved daughter, Edna, this congregation extend sympathy and can only say "May the God of consolation be theirs."—Com.
David Elliott, though still very weak, was so far recovered as to be able to be moved to Ottawa on Wednesday. His son Fred returned to Deseronto yesterday.

Why Suffer

When Your Agony and Torture Can Be Permanently Banished by Pain's Celery Compound?

Neuralgia Surely Cured by the Great Medicine.

Able Physicians Recommend It.

Able physicians, after a satisfactory experience with Pain's Celery Compound, have come to the conclusion that it is a true specific for that merciless tormentor—neuralgia.

Neuralgia indicates a low or depressed state of vitality, and nothing rapidly weakens and exhausts the system as pain that prevents sleep and keeps the body and mind in agony and torture.

Neuralgia being a nerve disease, is most common in the face, and frequently the entire head suffers excruciating pain. Attacks of neuralgia are very uncertain; sometimes they come and pass quickly away; often the pain and agony will continue for weeks and months.

When there is a lowering of vitality, when sleeplessness, anxiety, malaria and debility, are at work, and when there is exposure to wet and cold with rheumatic tendencies, neuralgia is sure to prevail.

Pain's Celery Compound being a nerve medicine and nerve food, it reaches the root of the trouble in a way that no other medicine can do. The most terrible and long standing cases have often been completely cured by the use of a few bottles of Pain's Celery Compound has in thousands of cases saved lives after the best medical treatments failed. If your life is a continued misery from neuralgia tortures, be wise and use at once, nature's true nerve medicine, Pain's Celery Compound. Beware of cheap imitations. "Pain's" is the name that cures.

LUXOR.

The river shallows wonder where
He went before the flood of day.
The river flows his shining hair
Over our path, they say.

The river meanders down upon
The crest of laughter of his lips.
The crying heart says he has gone
But cannot be, they say.

The Nile washes the lonely ships
How soon they think he will return.
"Perhaps today," but now the river
Will lead him, they say.

And he has not come back at all.
And now the hours are here again—
The "you and I" of the night and day,

A LUXOR INCIDENT.

"That you, Scott? Come right up," said Victor Lantow in answer to an impatient ring at his telephone.

Despite the closely drawn shades the August sunshine was filtering into the office, and the light breeze from Lake Michigan scarcely stirred the oppressive atmosphere. The reading of the manuscripts which the assistant editor had passed on to him for final approval or rejection had made eyes and brain alike weary, and his friend's visit was a welcome distraction.

"Well, who is the winner of the first prize?" Scott inquired cheerily.

"A man named Edwards of Macon. There's a story I like, but better, but it is out of the question."

"Sounds contradictory?"

"Yet it isn't. That which takes one's fancy isn't by any means always the best from a literary standpoint as it stands, yet much more convincing than any of the prize stories. The writer has evidently been to Egypt and is not lacking in observation. There are no wild flights of fancy, no overstatements, no exaggerations. It is simply a plain statement of facts, every word bearing the impress of truth. The inventive faculty is altogether absent."

"You make me quite curious. Let me read it," Scott said, smiling.

"No, you have not yet patience. Your experience has been confined to condensed newspaper paragraphs. You would probably lose sight of the story in the excitement of reading. I'll give you a brief outline of it if it please."

"The heroine, if she may be so styled, is a young English girl, making a trip to Egypt under the chaperonage of some acquaintances. The hero is a journalist—a young man, who, as the Egyptian correspondent of a Boston paper, the narrative commences at the point where the English girl's steamer Memphis arrives at Luxor and is moored at the foot of the steps which lead into the hotel."

"Our heroine enters the writing room, the only other occupant of which is the journalist. He has already been two months at Luxor, and being a sojourner in getting more than a little tired of the intense heat and his own company, so the dainty apparition in the cool white gown is a welcome intruder upon his solitude."

Scott looked up, suddenly attentive.

"He knows the English poetess, for he has seen her in the past, and he remains as blandly unconscious of her presence as she appears to be of his, but 'copy,' which a judicious interview of this sedate maiden may provide, has been scarce with him recently, and his professional instinct will not permit him to neglect such a golden opportunity. Accordingly he opens the conversation by telling her how impossible it would be for a countrywoman of his own to sit still in a rocking chair."

Scott frowned forward, his eyes gleaming curiously.

"Victor, what is the author's name?" "Catherine—Anne Cartwright!"

"Ah!"

Lantow looked up inquiringly.

"Do you happen to know her?"

"Once knew somebody of that name, but she did not live in this country, and she was not literary. Go on."

"American friends gradually overcoming English reserve, the two young people become friendly. They discover that in many things their tastes are similar, and during the steamer's three days' stay at Luxor, their friendship grows apace. Together they wander among the ruins of the temple of Luxor, sketch in the shadows of Karnak's pillars, and lunch without minding in the tomb of Seti I. In fact, it is a case of love at first sight. It is necessary to add that when the Memphis leaves for Assuan our impetuous compatriot has asked his three days' acquaintance to marry him. Dr. I. name you, Scott?"

"No, I am interested. Of course, the girl says 'Yes,' and they live happily ever after."

"You forget she is English. She promises to give him her answer when she returns with her party from the catara."

"Well?"

"Scott sat upright again, a strange expectancy in his voice."

"The steamer on its home journey leaves at Luxor in the early morning. The river is falling rapidly, and to avoid running on to sand banks and consequent delays, the manager of the Memphis decides to sacrifice the intended extra two days' stay at Luxor and proceed direct to Cairo. The hotel visitors are not astir, with the exception of a doctor—the journalist's travelling companion—and to him the girl confides a letter for her father, accepting him, and giving him her address in Cairo."

"Early and late she watches for him; day after day, with a sinking heart, she awaits the return of the steamer to his nonappearance. At last the moment arrives when she and her party must leave Cairo. Then only does she realize her lover's faithlessness and awake to the fact that she has lost him. It was merely a flirtation—one way of killing time, an incident of his visit to Egypt, already with a smile and a sharp disavowal from his memory."

Scott rose to his feet. "Is an incident he will never forget. I see you understand. Where is Miss Cartwright living?"

"But, Scott, you don't mean to say that?"

"Listen! My friend, Dr. Hines, was brought back to the hotel that morning dead—drowned. You will readily see that the horror of the catastrophe and the fact that the Memphis was the vessel for my mind for the time being. Afterward, when among the kindly fellows of some of Anne's fellow passengers I found no word from herself. I came to the conclusion that she thought it kinder than the only answer she felt able to give. To think one's happiness should depend on such a chance!"

"Miss Cartwright's position must have undergone a material change. She has no literary talent and evidently no persistence. This is a desperate effort to earn money."

"It is three years ago. In that time what may have happened? Give me her address, Victor."

"Three years ago three Superior street. Good luck to you!"

The woman who answered his ring and his inquiry for Miss Cartwright regarded him inquisitively.

"Why, yes, she is, but I guess she was a very nice girl, and she was packing to leave."

"Take her card."

He glanced curiously around the room into which he had been ushered. It was difficult to imagine Anne in the midst of such surroundings—Anne, whom he had last seen in a white dress, with his gift, a cluster of Luxor roses, fastened in her belt.

And then the door opened, and the two—the first chapter of whose love romance had been so strangely—were face to face once more.

"Anne, I learned today for the first time of the letter you sent me by Dr. Hines. Lantow, the editor of The Record, is a friend of mine."

The color flushed into the girl's face.

"He knew, then—you had told him—about me?"

"Not until now. He admired your story, and in relating it to me made several things clear. Dr. Hines was brought back to the hotel that morning drowned, the Nile kept your secret jealously, and I—I have always believed you wished your silence to convey the refusal you had not the heart to write. Anne, tell me what that letter at the bottom of the Nile contained!"

"Only your address in Cairo, and— but you know."

"The purport—yes. Yet satisfy me with the words, Anne. I have surely waited long enough to hear them."

"They were only two," she said as she raised her face to meet his kiss.

"They were just, 'Yes, John.'—'London Forget-Me-Not.'"

He registered, for another piece of pie, ma," said a precocious urblin.

"My son, you have cast one thoughtless ballot of pie down your throat. There shall be no stuffing the digestive tract box in this family."

And the little fellow hung around the supper without avail. Golden days.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, misshapen caricatures of humanity who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you need not fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills ALWAYS CURE.

FRIENDS PREVAILED

A Nervous Toronto Woman Walked the Floor During the Night for Hours at a Time—She Makes a Statement.

TORONTO, ONT.—"I was troubled with nervousness. It was impossible for me to keep still and if the spells came over me during the night I had to get up and walk the floor for hours at a time. My blood was very poor and I was subject to bilious attacks. My feet would swell and I was not able to do my own housework. I treated with two of the best physicians here but only received relief for a time. I became discouraged. One day a friend called and advised me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I laughed at the prospect but I was prevailed upon and procured one bottle. Before I used it all I began to feel better. I took several bottles and also several boxes of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Now I can eat and drink heartily and sleep soundly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has entirely cured me and also strengthened me so that I now do all my own work. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all sufferers from nervousness, weakness or general debility." Mrs. H. F. PARR, Dagmar Street.

The school teachers of Chicago are negotiating for the purchase of a farm, on which they propose to erect a house to be used as a rural retreat during vacation periods. The farm which lies six miles from Berlin, Wisconsin, is a beautiful tract of land consisting of 400 acres. It has been offered to the teachers for $20,000. The plan is to establish a dairy and stock farm, so that the country club may be self-supporting and if everything goes well the teachers will make their first visit to the summer retreat next July. Much enthusiasm is shown over the project, and the mutual benefit to be derived is hoped to be great.

Montreal Harbor Commissioners are in Baltimore, Md., looking at the harbor works.

"Hamilton House," the beautiful summer residence of Mrs. Wells of St. Louis, Mo., and formerly the property of Hon. Sidney Smith, was burned last week.

Albert Webber, at one time a patient in the London Asylum for the Insane, has been arrested in Detroit and taken to Windsor, charged with being implicated in stealing Jerome May's horse at Pike Creek.

John Grace, of Cardwell, near Parry Sound, is under arrest for having broken into the house of Edmund Thompson, at St. Catharines, and threatening to kill her daughter. It is not known whether he will be released or not.

Mrs. Lilly Kellar, of Hamilton, took opium with suicidal intent. She was recovered. She will not say who gave her the poison, and at the hospital she even refused to give her name. Last summer, when she was suffering from the name of Lilly Johnson, she took a dose of carbolic acid on James street. She is about 25 years of age.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Toronto Globe says: On Monday the new Penbroke Southern Railway was opened for traffic, the first train leaving Penbroke, Ont., for the Golden Lake via the Ottawa, and prior to Parry Sound. The company now propose extending the line fifty miles farther south, crossing the Iron-ore and Bancroft about ten miles east of Bancroft and connecting with the Grand Trunk at St. Ours, this connecting line to Trenton. It is also expected by the company that the Grand Trunk will extend their branch, already built from Peterborough to Lake Huron, north easterly about 35 miles to connect with the Penbroke Southern at St. Ours, which will still further shorten the distance to Toronto via Peterborough.

Grippe Epidemic

Again Sweeping Over Canada With Unusual Virulence.

The most Violent Attack Since 1890, Leaving Behind a Host of After Effects That Make Life Miserable.—Prompt and Effective Means Should be Taken To Strengthen the System.

Grippe, now sweeping over the continent in one of its periodic epidemics, is one of the most treacherous and difficult diseases with which medical science has to cope. It is in its after effects that it is particularly disastrous and these assume many forms, prominent among which may be mentioned head weakness, bronchial and lung troubles, nervous prostration, alternate chills and fevers, or of constant lassitude and an indisposition to either mental or physical exertion. Often the sufferer does not recover from the after effects of the grippe for months, and in cases of previously enfeebled constitutions and among those of advanced age, the number of cases terminating fatally is appreciable.

Even after a mild attack of the grippe it is imperative that the system should be thoroughly toned up, the nerves strengthened, and the blood purified. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only medicine that can be depended on for promptness and thoroughness in this emergency. These pills are a true blood feeder, bringing to the vital fluid the constituents that give it richness, and send direct to the blood the disease and acting as a tonic and bracer to the whole system.

Mr. Harry Dagg, a well known farmer near Deseronto, bears testimony to the great value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in removing the after effects of the grippe. The disease left him a victim to cold chills, headaches, dizziness, and severe palpitation of the heart. Mr. Dagg says: "I finally went to Boissevain and consulted a doctor, who stated that the trouble was a nervous prostration, and that I was under his care for about three months, but was gradually growing weaker and unable to do any work. At this stage one of my neighbors advised me to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, and as my case was critical, I determined to give them a fair trial, and purchased a dozen boxes. Before the third was used there was good evidence that they were helping me, and before I had finished the first box I was as strong and vigorous as I ever had been, and I can heartily recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the manifold troubles that follow an attack of the grippe."

If you have suffered from an attack of the grippe procure a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once, and they will put you right. Insist upon getting the genuine, as imitations never cured anyone. If your dealer does not keep them, send direct to Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and they will be mailed post paid; at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50.

SPOILED MATERIALS.

A Well Known Druggist Gives His Experience.

A successful and well known Canadian druggist said recently: "I know from experience what it means to sell dyes that have no standing or established reputation. Over a year ago, I put in a small stock of dyes. I had been asked by three or four persons for these dyes which they saw advertised, and I had under the impression the demand would increase. In a very short time I sold probably from twenty to twenty-five packets, and had so many orders that I was unable to fill them. I had a very good sale, and I was very much pleased. I had a very good sale, and I was very much pleased. I had a very good sale, and I was very much pleased."

This statement from an old established druggist has its notes of warning. His long and extended experience is in favor of the Diamond Dyes. There are many dealers in cheap dyes, and dealers and tens of thousands of women who could give clear and convincing testimony that Diamond Dyes are a true article. They are of pure, purity, strength, fastness, color, brilliancy and beauty. As an imitation and adulteration of dyes sold, it is well that all should insist upon getting the "Diamond" when buying dyes for their laundry. See that the name is on each packet.

A THOUSAND TONGUES. Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of 1125 Howard st., Philadelphia, Pa., when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All that she could say was, "I feel like a new man."

One very hot day in July Leslie and his daughter, Amy Seymour, were returning from a walk. A call to the drawing room windows opened on the veranda, which was covered with luxuriant creepers. It looked very cool and pleasant inside on such a sultry day. The two girls went to enter the room when Leslie, who was in advance, suddenly drew back and pointed inside. Amy peeped in. There was Captain Murray fast asleep in an armchair near a window.

"What a chance, Amy, for me to win a pair of gloves!"

"For shame, Leslie! You surely would not think of such a thing."

"Who's afraid?" said Leslie. "He's never known, and the temptation is too much for me. Consider, the hero the whole world raves about," and with a mischievous look at Amy she stepped lightly in and dropped a kiss as light as a puff of dandelion upon the sleeper's forehead.

As the sound of the girl's retreating footsteps died away, Douglas Murray opened his eyes, and smiling to himself, said:

"I suppose that is considered a fast girl. I must confess I like her, and believe she is really true and womanly. That fast manner is all humbug. I must be fast for my own sake, however."

And he laughed. She thinks me a muff, I know. Never mind, that kiss was very nice—I forgive her."

A day or two afterward as they were all in bed, Sir Henry said:

"I forgot, Leslie, here is something for you," handing her a small packet, marked "Parcel Post."

"What can it be, I wonder?" she said, as she opened the packet. "The handwriting is quite strange to me," and she was about to open it quite unconcernedly, when Amy remarked:

"It is just the shape of a glove box."

Leslie looked at her and gaily across the table at Captain Murray,

INCALCULABLE GOOD,

AN EXPRESSION OF FAITH.

Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills have done me an incalculable amount of good. I think they are the best, surest and quickest acting cure for nervousness, unhealthiness of the heart, insomnia, indigestion, anæmia, or impoverished blood, loss of appetite, general debility and ill-health. For nine years, before I commenced taking Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills, my heart was weak and in an unhealthy state. Its action was so much impaired that I could not walk across the street without suffering great distress, my heart fluttering and beating so rapidly that I could scarcely breathe, causing faintness, loss of strength, and leaving my nerves all unstrung. My sleep was very much disturbed. I had no appetite and there was little strength or vitality in my blood; I was always excessively nervous.

I have now taken three boxes of Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills and since taking them I have not been away from my business an hour. Before taking these pills it was a frequent occurrence for me to be away from business. As a result of taking Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills I am perfectly healthy and strong and gives me no distress or trouble whatever. They removed all nerve trouble, made my nerves strong and gave me healthy sleep. These pills also made my blood rich and strong and gave me a healthy appetite. Dr. Ward's Pills have given me perfect health, restoring my lost strength, in place of continual ill-health, weakness, heart trouble and nervousness. In justice to me I cannot speak too highly of this wonderful medicine. Signed, Miss N. Millward, Walton St., Port Hope, Ont.

Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills are sold at 50c per box, 5 boxes for $2.00 at druggists, or mailed on receipt of price by sending to Dr. J. C. Ward, 71 Victoria Street, Toronto. Book of information free.

STORY OF A NOSE.

The furor that Cyranos's nose has made in two continents makes timely the question, How would a play turning on a fascinating woman with a nose that turns up like a bird's beak doubtless would be at once doomed to disaster. The question of such a proposal on a woman is wittily handled in the sparkling little translation from the Spanish which we print below. It is reminiscent of the anecdote which is told of Arago, the famous French scientist, who was gifted by Providence with a great brain and a mighty nose.

During a stormy winter in Paris in the old days all sorts of pranks and curious costumes were permitted—Arago found himself in an amusing opposite a mother and her infant child. At sight of Arago's extraordinary nose the infant took off your nose! The mother at first attempted to quiet the terrified infant, but, failing, took courage in her two hands, as the French say, and at once impulsively exclaimed to Arago, "Oh, monsieur, I beg of you to take off your nose!" The irritated scientist was obliged to explain that his nose was not a carnival nose, but that it belonged there. The incident in this little translation suggests the Arago anecdote.

"My little masquerader, it is possible that I am not to see your face."
 "It is because of the cause of gratifying you consults me to keep the mask on."

"Your conversation charms me and every word increases my impatience to know you."

"Did you not call me the sweet object of your inspiration? While I remain concealed I am sure of hearing flattering expressions from your mouth, to which I am not accustomed from my face, that of your nose!"

"This modesty is to me the best proof of your merit."

"Yes, I have the merit of being modest—no, I am wrong—I mean of being sincere."

"You—you are not ugly. I don't know it. Only one thing would grieve me," I continued, "if you should unmask."

"What?"

"That it would not be lawful to speak to you as to a mountain girl—as to a mountain girl, you can take a greater quantity than they now do.
 Our daymen need not be discouraged."

"The by-products of our daymen increase are becoming more and more

"Pardon me the knife? I can't un-

 Bonny!"

"I could not finish the word, such was my surprise, amazement, terror. What a nose! What a nose! Oh, what a nose!
 I would not have believed that nature was capable of arriving at such a degree of pleasure, hypertrophy, amplification.
 The sonnet of Góngora, 'Erase un hombre a una nariz pegado.' (There was a man attached to a nose), would be poor and untrue to best advantage. This was no human nose. It was a best root, a connoisseur, an Egyptian pyramid. If it is just to condemn everything unreasonable, everything exaggerated, why is it that a law is given against the exaggeration of noses?"

In the midst of the horror which this monstrous discovery caused me I wanted to withdraw myself from the large nose mountain girl, without incurring a rude remark from her. I made increasing efforts toward some expression of gallantry. Impossible. If I could have had a mirror before me, I am sure I must have seen a foolish face.

Fortunately for me, the mountain girl—who doubtless had learned to resistance herself to her deformity, likewise to her own—laughed quite good humoredly, whether at my conflict or at herself I did not know. This gave me courage to rise, under the pretext of going to greet a friend. And, without caring to look back, I took my leave with a formal "Farewell, senorita."

"Shame gave wings to my feet; wrath blinded me; the ground felt me in my flight. I started when I found against persons, over myself, and would have walked home without waiting for the coach or to get my overcoat. I flew, then, to the refreshment room, took possession of a table, snatched up the bill of fare, asked what they could bring me the quickest. I ate, now, not with appetite, but furiously, from four different plates, and they were about to bring me the fifth, when I beheld seated in front of me, just as I justly the same mountain girl, or rather, I should say, the same nose which had horrified me shortly before. My first impulse was to rise and run, but the merry girl, petrified me by saying with innocent sweetener:—

"What? Are you not going to invite me to supper?"

I felt troubled and looked sheepish.
 The nose laughed, and so, to my discomfort, did the gallant who accompanied me. I would have liked to wring my rage upon him.

"Senorita!"

"It shall not cost you much—a glass of wine; nothing more."

Such impudence stung me keenly, and I resolved on being revenged by mocking her.

"I shall have the greatest pleasure in complying with your demand, senorita, though I fear that your nose will prevent you from putting a glass to your lips. If you cannot take it off, as you did your mask, I do not know how."

"You are rude, sir, but I shall be gracious. I will remove it."

"How? What do you say? Then?"

"At this instant I have darted up to his nose and she tore it off!"

"Alas, it was false! It was postcard, and it left her real nose revealed, no less graceful and perfect than the other features of her face."

"How shall I depict my shame, my desperation, on beholding such an exquisite creature, and the remembrance of the levity, the discourtesy, the inequity of my conduct! I was going to beg a thousand pardons, to lament my error, and, prostrated, kiss the dust at her feet. But I refused to do so, and of her escort, disconcerted me with a severe look, and, imitating my cold manner of a short time before, said,
 "Farewell, senorita!" and she burst into a peal of mocking laughter."

"I never saw her more.—From the Spanish For Argonaut."

A Lion's Sympathy.

Edgar Quin in his journal tells how one day he went with the naturalist, Mr. Croft, to the Jubilee of the des Plantes. "In one of the cages were a lion and a lioness together. They were standing up, quite motionless, and seemed not even to see us. Presently the lion, lifting up its great paw, placed it slowly and softly on the head of the lioness, and both continued in the same attitude as long as we remained before them. What was intended by the gesture? A palmer who should have desired to represent calm grief and the deepest compassion could not have invented anything more striking. 'What does it mean?' said I to Geoffroy. 'Their lion whelp died this morning,' replied
 he. Then I understood what I saw.

Patti's Voice.

All of our leading vocalists are exceedingly careful of their voices and study their daily bills of fare with the most minute anxiety as to what they shall eat or what they shall drink.
 Probably few of our principal singers of song are ever concerned about their voices than Miss Patti. Does her bill

Curing Emotion.

We have all seen the man with so diplomatic a countenance that an earthquake would hardly produce any change in his imperturbable face. We are apt to infer that these spinsterlike persons never feel emotion, whereas they do not betray their feelings like the generality of people.

Columns have been written about the imperturbable Dismal's expression.
 A German philosopher once went to Berlin for the sole purpose of studying his character and discovered what every one had searched for in vain. "Like all the famous biographers. He formed the idea in youth that it was unmanly to make any violent display of joy or grief,
 and he succeeded so well in repressing
 his feelings that when he grew up he could not show them. When his brother and sister died within a few days of each other, Lockhart did not cry or otherwise relieve his deep and terrible feelings, and the consequence was that he became so ill that his life was in jeopardy."

But if there was ever a man of "iron self control" that man was Lockhart, the famous biographer. He formed the idea in youth that it was unmanly to make any violent display of joy or grief,
 and he succeeded so well in repressing
 his feelings that when he grew up he could not show them. When his brother and sister died within a few days of each other, Lockhart did not cry or otherwise relieve his deep and terrible feelings, and the consequence was that he became so ill that his life was in jeopardy."

Coal Burned by Steamships.

The amount of coal consumed by a vessel during a voyage depends very largely upon the speed, for the consumption of coal increases almost in a geometrical ratio to the speed. There are many ships which burn from 100 to 300 tons of coal per day, the lowest consumption being when the vessel is going at a moderate rate. Out of war of war did not consume so much in proportion as swift passenger steamers which ply between Europe and America, for unless in an emergency they are not driven at the highest attainable speed. The ocean passenger steamers often burn from 2,000 to 3,000 tons during a passage lasting six to seven days.

"A Good Pulpit Sweet."

The man who preaches with his entire fluids the body and mind and heart are all excited. Other than that which he uses in his painting room, it is said, Sir Joshua Reynolds took no exercise. He walked about the picture on his easel, and his whole mind and heart went out toward it. Whitefield in his homely way commended to his brethren in the ministry "a good pulpit sweet" as the best medicine. A sermon is an athletic exercise as well as a drain on the soul and spirit. Virtue goes out of the preacher just in proportion as he is a close follower of his divine Master.

PUT YOUR FINGER

ON YOUR PULSE.

If it is Weak or Irregular don't Hesitate to take a course of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills at once.

With a strong, steady, regular pulse we may expect vigorous health.

By their action in strengthening the heart, toning up the nerves and enriching the blood, Milburn's Heart and Nerve

Pills relieve and cure all those distressing conditions just enumerated.

For some time past I have suffered from palpitation, weakness and nervous trouble. I had palpitation and irregular beating of the heart so severe as to cause me great alarm. I was treated by physicians, but got no permanent relief.

I am glad to say that from Milburn's first real benefit that I ever got from any medicine. My appetite is improved, my entire system toned up, and I can do more than I have ever before. I have been taking a regular course of these pills all requiring a reliable heart and nerve tonic.

HE WORKED THE COMBINATION.

St. Catharines Local Expert Proves to Be a Gravelle.

St. Catharines, Jan. 18.—A good argument for Ponton was enacted when Mr. John Quinn, proprietor of the Russell House here, changed the combination of his safe about ten days ago and locked it before making note of the numbers. He then wrote to a safe man and asked that a man be sent to unlock it, but the reply came that the combination could not be worked out, it being a five-numbered one and impossible of solution. This fact became known to Mr. Wells, manager of the Electric Light Company, and he volunteered to try the trick, and furthermore, he offered to bet $100 that he could open the safe. He was laughed at, but was given a chance to make his word good. Last night he applied himself at the task and in two hours his efforts were rewarded by the combination working out.

MEN DEVoured BY WOLVES.

The Howling Brutes Are Numerous in the Lumber Camps.

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—A gentleman from out of the Ottawa, who came to this city last evening, states that in the vicinity of the Collingwood limits, hungry packs of wolves are ravaging the country, and the shantymen are compelled to go armed in many cases, in order to protect their lives. One of the men employed in Mr. Alex. Fraser's camps went out a few days ago and a short time afterwards his head and feet were found in the woods, the body having been devoured by wolves, whose tracks were plainly traceable. Two men who left one of the camps at Christmas time to go to Ottawa, have not been heard of since, and it is feared that they, too, have met a terrible fate. In no previous year have the wolves been so numerous or ferocious, and hundreds have been killed by the shantymen.

Collision at Minnie.

Minnie, Jan. 18.—Collision of two freight trains occurred here last night, resulting in the destruction of one locomotive and serious damage to the other, as well as damage to the cars. Fortunately both crews realized the collision was imminent before it came, and by jumping from their respective engines saved their lives.

The Exchequer Court at Ottawa has suspended judgment in the case of the Queen v. Stewart. Counsel representing the Department of Railways and Canals are endeavoring to obtain a writ of habeas corpus for the release of Stewart from the proceedings and the issuance of a writ giving Mr. Archie Stewart leave to go to the United States for $250,000 damages.

There is said to have been a great amount of bungling in the way the case has been handled for the Government.

PROF. MACADAM DROWNED.

Wandered Down to Toronto Bay and Went Through the Ice.

His Seal Cap and His Spaniel's Intelligence and Faithfulness Arouse Suspicion, and the Waters Being Drugged, His Body Is Recovered—Another Case of Canine Love That Is Remarkable—Sketch of the Dead Man's Career.

Toronto, Jan. 18.—The finding of a seal cap on the ice near the Grandview Ice Company's docks, at the foot of West Market street on Monday night, has proved to be the forerunner of a tale of tragedy. At noon yesterday, Joseph Goodwin, Jr., of the Island, found the body of the late Prof. Macadam in the icy water near where the cap was found and the little spaniel watched.

The body was somewhat mutilated, the finger nails were broken, as if from the victim's struggles to get out of the water. Upon his person was found his initial watch, which had stopped at 9:25.

The body was removed to Millard's on Yonge street, and an inquest will be held to-day.

For the past three months the deceased had been living at 50 Mutual street, and was trying to get his seal cap made long shells in the evening. On Monday he left home at 7:15 p.m., accompanied by his cocker spaniel, saying he would return at midnight. He did not return by midnight, and the household was alarmed. Mrs. Macadam remained up all night.

At 1 a.m. the faithful spaniel came home, dripping wet and shivering with the cold. It is now evident he had been in the water trying to get his seal cap made long shells in the evening. He was found by the police on the 18th inst.

Life. The dog was admitted to the house, and immediately ran upstairs to his master's room. Then he ran to the side of Mrs. Macadam, and jumping upon her knees, placed his two front paws on both her shoulders and attempted to kiss her head.

Mrs. Macadam, not having returned with the dog, his wife became suspicious of what had happened. The little dog was soon again missed. He was found by the police on the 18th inst.

If You Want Anything

the chances are that it is here just now, and here at a BARGAIN. Each pickings are to be found throughout every department in the stock. Every short length of goods, every broken line and reduced assortment, is marked away down to clear before the arrival of spring goods. Many shelves that are now full, must be emptied in the next two weeks, and prices shall not stand in the way. Now is the time to secure a stylish street dress at little cost. We are showing dress lengths in some of our handsomest goods at from 15 to 25 per cent off the regular prices, while they last.

Ready Made Suits

During the bargain month of January we are offering good suits at the price paid elsewhere for poor ones. Splendid well made goods in checks and mixed tweeds from $4.75 up.

In Neckwear, White Shirts, Gloves, Handkerchiefs, Suspenders, Hats. Fur Caps, there are interesting values here that you will like to know of. For instance—Ties 25c., 35c. White Shirts for 50c., $1.25 Gloves for 90c.

Remember we keep a large stock of Groceries which we sell at rock-bottom prices. The trade supplied with Sugars, Tobacco, C. Oil, etc., at regular wholesale prices.

A DEEP SEARCH

May not result in the discovery of any great amount, yet a small sum will purchase a great deal at the present low prices at which we are now offering goods. We are using special efforts to make the next few weeks merchandising prior to stock-taking larger than ever.

J. H. HAMILTON.

Room in Which Napoleon Was Born.

His greatness still consecrates the place. Push back the jealousies and let in the light upon the mean beginnings of so stupendous a destiny. Here is the scene of his birth, and here he was born, and so sacred still. This is the bed on which he was born—hardly bigger than a couch. Here is Madame's escritoire, where she must have done those hundred accounts yearly more difficult to balance with a little old frail child at her side sometimes, plucking at her dress and looking up awed (she is the one person in all the world of whom he is afraid) into her face. Here is her spinnet, with its yellow notes, which she played perhaps while those little kings and queens to be danced to her music, and the one born great (the others only have greatness thrust upon them) stood apart unclinging like and solitary. The very chairs and tables are the same. There is the narrow strip of bedroom which was his.

"I should have been the happiest man in the world," he says to Montolieu, and forty years later, with an annual income of $2,500 a year, living in the father of a family, with my wife and son, in our old home at Ajaccio.

See the "Gray Matter."

The writer last examined many brains of persons morally or intellectually below the average—such as murderers, negroes and others sunk in ignorance. Again great objects of contemplation, vulgar, or gray matter, to be thicker than that of Daniel Webster's brain. Elephants, porpoises, whales, dolphins and the grampus all have this layer thicker than the most intellectual man.

Another great objection to locating mind in the gray matter of the brain is that this substance is found in the interior part of the spinal cord and in all the nerve centers throughout the body. So that if mind is situated in it, it is not confined to the brain, but dwells in the spine also, and is distributed all through the human frame.

Still another objection lies in the fact that wherever the gray matter exists near the surface of the brain it comes in three distinct layers, separated by a white substance, and the outermost layer is white, not gray.—Dr. Joseph Simms in Popular Science Monthly.

Seeing a Bullet in Flight.

"As every sportsman knows," said an enthusiastic New Orleans hunter, "it is easy to see a rifle bullet in the air, and those fired from the new high power guns are very curious to look at. Stand a dozen yards on one side of the mark and let a friend blaze away at any range with a small caliber weapon using smokeless powder, and you'll see a strange, bluish white streak the instant the bullet strikes home. The streak is apparently a couple of inches wide and several feet long and is more like a flash of light than anything else I can think of."

With the old fashioned Remington or Springfield caliber bullet the appearance of a long black rod, and I don't know why there should be such a difference in the optical illusion produced by the smaller caliber. I have heard some people deny that the bullet can be seen, but they are very much in error. It all depends on getting the right viewpoint. A few feet either way will render the missile invisible, but the right spot is soon found by experiment, and after that the thing is as plain as day."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Big Men and Big Noses.

Cyrano de Bergerac is remembered because of his large nose. Few know that he was a poet, and fewer still knew his poetry. The nose is a conspicuous feature of history. The length of the nose is said to have figured in Roman politics, and a scandal grew out of it which ended in the ruin and death of Antony and the establishment of an empire which lasted a thousand years. Napoleon would not promote a man who had not a large nose. He himself was well favored in this respect. Caesar was "the hook nosed Roman."

All American statesmen have been noted for this feature. Old men tell of our own Benton, who used to shake his nose like an elephant's proboscis when he got excited. It seems to be the law that all great men have great noses, but let no one think that the converse of this is true, that all men who have great noses are great men. Such a conclusion would lead to confusion and needless pain and disappointment.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Evening Dress in Kansas City.

The dress suit is the most democratic raiment in the world. It meets the requirements of good form, whether it was made six years ago or last month. Attributed in evening costume, whether the swallowtails are long or short, narrow or wide, all men look, practically speaking alike, whether they are wage earners or millionaires. The dress suit levelled distinctions and illustrates the potentiality of a correct style. A young man who has made a good selection in his rented broadcloth serenely greets his wealthy rival who has paid for his London clothes a price like $150. How alike the fane of this world are the small when wrapped in a swallowtail coat among many others of the same cut! When the dress suit becomes the regular evening calling and theater dress for Kansas City men, as it should be, the poor chaps will profit by it a full cubit of serenity and self respect.—Kansas City Star.

THE SMELTING WORKS IN FULL BLAST. DESERONTO'S NEW INDUSTRY.

The Molten Metal Drawn off Yesterday for the First Time.

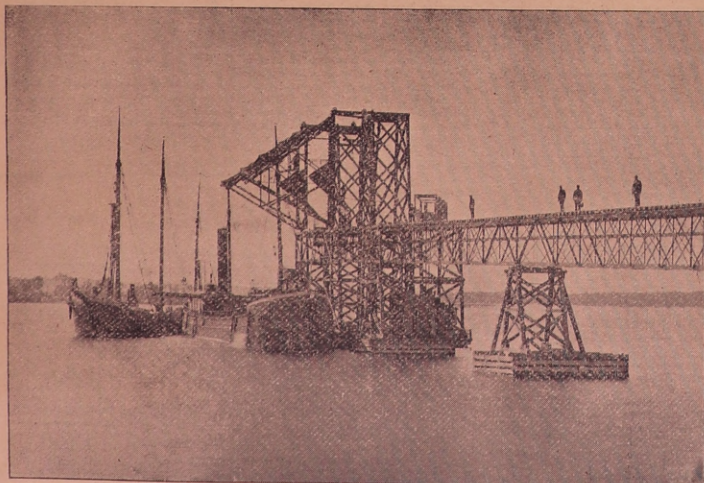

VIEW OF THE MAIN BUILDING AND FURNACE FROM THE BAY.

The citizens of Deseronto will always regard January 25th as one of the most noted days in the calendar, because on that date, in this year 1899, the smelting works of the Deseronto Iron Company were for the first time set in motion for the manufacture of charcoal iron. Without any flourish of trumpets or demonstration of any kind, but in that business and matter of fact way which is characteristic of Deseronto, the process of manufacturing iron was commenced and another great and important industry added to the number of those for which our busy town is already distinguished. And yet though there was no open or apparent manufacture of civic pleasure and satisfaction it is needless to state that a thrill of pride filled many a breast and the pulse of every citizen beat more rapidly when the word passed around town that the "smelter" was really now at work.

shared by all as was evidenced by the substantial endorsement of the property owners of the town. The manufacture of charcoal iron although for very many years carried on very extensively in Michigan and other parts of the United States has never attained very large proportions in Canada. The only plant at present in active operation in this country is that at Radnor, Quebec, with a total capacity of probably 400 tons per month. Many years ago works on a small scale were started at Manom and in Algoma. In this province, and there was also a small plant near Woodstock, N. B. At that time the market for such iron was comparatively limited in Canada and there were other obstacles which discouraged the promoters. In fact the works established at that time were in large measure experimental and their failure did not reflect in any way on the skill or enterprise of their promoters. Although Canada has such vast areas of wooded lands and though in many parts of the country there are extensive deposits of iron ore, it is home market for all kinds of iron has been comparatively limited and Canadian iron works must also necessarily find it very difficult to compete with the immense plants of Great Britain and the United States which, from the very fact of producing such vast quantities, can do so at the minimum cost per ton. It is gratifying that capitalists recognising the growing possibilities for the iron industry in Canada should have chosen Deseronto as the seat of the first extensive plant of this kind in the province of Ontario. The location of such a plant at Deseronto is primarily the result of a plan entered into by the late Hugo Burghard Rathbun, founder of Deseronto, and his sons E. W. Rathbun and the late F. S. Rathbun. They early conceived the idea of turning to account the waste material of their saw mills, and founded several factories with that end in view. To this end gas works for the conversion of sawdust into gas were started. The town was illuminated in this way for one year, but it was found to be unprofitable and afterwards the manufacture of fire

THE ORE DOCK AND TRESTLE.

The establishment of smelting works in Deseronto has been looked forward to for many years. Time and again they became a topic of conversation and time and again hopeful anticipations were disappointed and it was not surprising that many became skeptical of the institution of such an industry in the town. Nevertheless there were always a faithful few who were confident that the busy brain and indomitable will of the chief promoter would ultimately succeed in the achievement of this great purpose. It is gratifying to know that when the time for action came his convictions were practically somewhat surprising that capitalists during the past twenty years have never directed their attention to the smelting of iron by means of charcoal. The iron thus produced is almost indispensable in several lines of manufacturing and there is a market for it in Europe as well as on this continent. But on the other hand it must be remembered that the industrial development of Canada only covers at best but a few decades, and other and more profitable branches of industry less ultimately succeed in the achievement of this great purpose. It is gratifying to know that when the time for action came his convictions were practically proofing terra cotta was entered upon. Wood distillation was, after a number of costly experiments, made a success and has been carried on for several years, the charcoal being exported to Detroit for the smelting works in that city. It was felt all along that this should be utilized in Ontario for the same purpose. E. W. Rathbun, general manager of the Rathbun Company, accordingly entered into negotiations with the Gaylord Iron Company and other American capitalists and after some years succeeded in eliciting their active co-operation. To him it must be most gratifying to see the labors of so many years crowned with success, and

Messrs. Douglas & Co., Napanee.

Dear Sirs,—Having had wonderful success with your Liniment my stock, etc., I feel it my duty to write you in behalf of our friends who were troubled with caked legs, they were so badly caked, we thought they would lose the use of them, but as usual your Douglas Egyptian Liniment was applied twice, and in twenty-four hours we could milk as well as ever. When anything in our home or stable goes wrong your Liniment is called for at once, it never fails. Hoping this letter may assist you in putting forward the greatest Liniment on sale, every reader of this article will unite in extending him the heartiest congratulations on the realization of his unwearied efforts to secure for Deseronto and Ontario an industry capable of such vast possibilities in the industrial development of Canada. To his energy and foresight, more than to any other cause, is this triumph due. It is to be regretted that the late F. S. Rathbun, the first secretary-treasurer of the Iron Company and so long identified with this contemplated undertaking, did not live to see the works in active operation. To the gentlemen in the United States who have invested so much capital in this industry the people of Ontario owe a great debt of gratitude. It is true that with them the undertaking is in one sense no experiment. Mr. Gerhauser, the president, one of the best known iron manufacturers on the continent, F. B. Gaylord, the general manager of the company, has had a large experience in the manufacture of charcoal iron and is thoroughly conversant with every detail. He must be congratulated on the success which has thus far crowned the undertaking. He has been successful in overcoming the work and it must be pleasing to him to see the machinery working so correctly. Mr. Gaylord assures us that the works start at a most favorable in a commercial point of view, the demand for charcoal iron being at present brisk and the stocks on hand much less than usual.

I remain, yours truly,

The magnitude and importance of this enterprise as it will effect this district can be best understood by considering in the first place the vast area of wooded country from which the supply of charcoal timber must be derived and with which the furnace must be connected by railway and other communications so as to ensure the economical transportation of material. It is unnecessary to inform our readers that the Bay of Quinte Railway system is absolutely necessary for the carriage of the wood. It taps the large territory upon which the Rathbun Company is engaged in their great lumber operations. It also reaches out and makes connections with other lines which penetrate vast areas covered with the coarse woods from which the charcoal is to be manufactured. Then, besides, consider the long period of time and the numerous experiments necessary to establish the wood distillation works in Deseronto for the purpose of converting the coarse woods into charcoal and other commercial products. Without these works charcoal could not be produced at a cost which would permit its use in the manufacture of iron in this present day of high prices. The large expenditures which have been made in the erection of the vast plant of the distillation works by the Rathbun Company who originally conceived them and now in progress by the Standard Chemical Company could only have been made on the assumption that the charcoal would be used in the making of iron by the smelting works. The wood distillation plant is quite as important as that of the smelting furnace; each is dependent on the other for its existence and both must be of great benefit to the town and district. Even at the present contemplated output of 12,000 tons of iron per annum, the wood distillation plant, in order to furnish the necessary charcoal for smelting the ore, will require annually about 20,000 cords of coarse timber, equal to six car loads a day. The supplying of these large quantities of employment in the rest townships during the cold weather to at least 200 men and 80 teams of horses. In addition to these the hands employed in the transportation of this wood by water and rail. Then there are possibilities that in the future other industries may be linked on to the pres

GROUP and WHOOPING COUGH.

Griffith's Liniment is the emergency doctor that's always at hand and never fails in those diseases which so suddenly and unexpectedly endanger the lives of children—the attacks come when they may, with what severity they may, quick relief is assured.

One of our children has been subject to Croup almost since its birth. Many times we have been at our wits' end, and not until we had procured Griffith's Liniment had we found a remedy that would accomplish this. We would not be without it in our house. We have also used it for coughs and colds and find it very effective. MRS. J. SIMS, Mount Pleasant, Vancouver, B.C.

GRIFFITH'S MENTHOL LINIMENT

RELIEVES THE INSTANT AFFLICTION.
AT ALL DRUGGISTS—25 CENTS

"A Bad Break," said the bride of a few weeks, "and I don't know what you are going to do about it."

"But why don't you get a better brand?" said young husband, not any too sweetly. "I have a remedy for that."

"That's what I sit down to read this lamp chimney breaks into a thousand pieces!"

Next night he came home with a small package under his arm.

"Married," said he, in a tone of superiority. "I have bought a chimney that will last."

"How much did you pay for it, dear?"

"Fifteen cents. I don't want any more of your 5 cent things in the house. You see you women haven't a right understanding of the word economy. You think just because you get things cheap that you are saving money—whereas I have continued the economy all the time by getting the chimney in place."

"There!" said he, turning up the light. "There is a chimney—confound the fellow! Well, I wish all the glass blowers and grocers in seven counties were tied up and hung over a clothes-line to fight it out. You can bet I'd be there to coach the scrap!"—Detroit Free Press.

A Surprised Sister.

"Miss Lucy," said young Mr. Pitt, with some trepidation in his manner, "there is something I very much want to tell you, and the present seems to be a very good opportunity."

"Mr. Pitt," replied the young lady, who was kind of heart and wished to spare his feelings, "I have been expecting it for some time, but really it cannot be as you wish."

"Can't it be, Pitt?"

"Well, Mr. Pitt, I can only be a sister to you."

"That's just what I was about to say! You will be a sister to me, because your sister Mabel and I are engaged to be married. Mabel asked me to break the news to you."—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

A Modern Princess.

A good story is told of the Princess Maude of Wales. After a long season of attending the inaugurations of wings of hospitals, homes, exhibitions, and fairs, she is reported to have said to her father and mother:

"What a blessing it must have been to have been born a princess in the days when they had nothing to open and shut!" a sentiment with which the Prince and Princess of Wales no doubt in their inmost hearts agree.

The Sunflower.

In 1849 a Russian farmer named Bokareff conceived the idea of extracting oil from the seed of the sunflower. His neighbors told him it was a visionary idea, and that he would have his labor for his pains. He persevered, however, and from that time beginning the industry has expanded to enormous proportions. Today more than 7,000,000 acres of land in Russia are devoted to the cultivation of the sunflower. Two kinds are grown, one with small seeds, which are crushed for oil, and the other with larger seeds, that are consumed by the poorer people in enormous quantities.

COMPLINE.
An evening settled down about the land. And a small child, who had fallen asleep, was through the night moves a knowledge deep.
The child's head was a living hand. Nodding from nature into one's soul. As the child's head moves, and half we hear. The barriers that the dumb recorders keep. A ray streams through, and half we understand.

For twilight is the spirit's dwelling place. Where mystery melts the solid dissolving world. And glances of order step from chaos. But still still have where the door is peered. Beasts and beacons, and from banish.

Our dear selves we summon face to face. —Harrison S. Morris in Harper's Magazine.

A REBEL'S HEAD.

This is not really my own story—it is my grandfather's. Still, since it is all in the family, I may as well tell it, and, besides, it has special interest now, when so many people in this land are looking and longing across the Pacific to where our flag floats over Manila Bay.

In the year 1842 my grandfather, a young man of 30, shipped as a common sailor on the three-masted ship Polly Ann of New Bedford, bound from New York to the Philippines with a cargo of flour. The voyage was uneventful, and 130 days after passing San Pedro de Macoris he dropped anchor in Pasig river, Manila.

During the ship's stay there grandfather, who was of an investigating disposition, looked the city over, and, well, and believing there were chances for a wide awake Yankee to make a fortune in the islands, he quit the ship and took service with a trading firm on the harbor front. In ten years he was manager of a business of his own and a man of influence among the foreign traders. The Spaniards, too, looked up to him and respected him.

As his business grew he was unable to manage all the details of the increasing trade, and so called to his help a young Filipino named Juan Aguado, a bright young man, half Spanish, half Malay, who had formerly been an assistant in the packing house. Aguado possessed polished courtly manners and a good education. He had received his schooling at a monastery, and grandfather trusted him implicitly, for in the course of time he made him chief clerk and adviser.

Aguado was absolutely fearless—there was where his Malay blood showed out, grandfather would remark, when he himself had occasion to refer to the story. They were out on a rafting one day in a jungle full of crocodiles, 10 or 15 miles away from the city, when they were charged by a maddened buffalo that dashed out of a water hole upon them.

They both ran for cover, but grandfather, with some trepidation, tripped on a vine and fell, and before he could regain his feet the animal was upon him. It was no time to use a gun—they were armed with nothing but light fowling pieces for pleasure shooting. When grandfather fired, the animal was killed, and he, being a Malay, made a leap to one side to pass him, but he was not thinking of saving himself. Quickly drawing his creese, which was another mark of the Malay in him, he rushed back upon the buffalo and stabbed him in the neck again and again with all the dexterity of a veteran matador. The buffalo fell dead in his tracks, and grandfather crawled away with a broken arm.

From that time on the two men were like brothers. Aguado soon got so that he had an opportunity to show his regard for his employer and benefactor, and grandfather was too much of a man to be anything but generous to one who lived up to his word.

But it was about the end of their comradeship. One day a native from up country called at the warehouse for Aguado. They retired to a distant part of the building and talked long and quietly together. Then the stranger went away and the clerk returned to his desk.

That night, when it came time for closing, Aguado said: "Senior, I must leave you. I am wanted at home, and it will be useless for me to detain you."

Grandfather was surprised beyond belief almost, but he did not try to dissuade him. He paid his arrears of salary, added a handsome bonus and said good-by to the only man in the east of whom he was truly fond.

Two years passed and not a word came from Aguado, but that was not very strange, for the province where he lived had been open revolt for some time, and as the fighting on both sides was constant and relentless communication with Manila was practically cut off.

However, as time went on the rebellion was crushed, and the insurgents were scattered or captured. The leader of the revolution, one Luiz Berceo, was a man of considerable generalship and resources, for without munitions or money he had held his ground against the Spaniards for a long time and had intrigued successfully among the native troops sent to oppose him. But he could not hold out forever, and he, too, was a fugitive.

Then it was that the government resorted to an expedient often tried in Spanish countries for catching those who will not surrender—a price was set for his head. Placards were posted in Manila and throughout the islands wherever Spanish authority was recognized, proclaiming a reward of 40,000 Mexican dollars to the one who would bring the head of the insurgent leader to the authorities.

My grandfather had frequently seen these announcements and wondered what sort of a man it was who caused the captain general so much annoyance. Both the captain general and himself were soon to know.

One afternoon the captain general sat alone in his office. He was in a complacent mood, for certain documents before him related to the disposition of the surrendered insurgent bands who had been harassing his chosen province for the last two years. Suddenly, without any warning, the door opened behind him, and a man stepped quickly into the room, at the same time slipping the bolt again into its place. He was dressed like a priest, in a long black gown and had a hood over his head.

"Peace upon you," he said coldly, and Don Xavier Marcia turned to his chair.

"Who are you, and what do you want?"

"Do not talk too loud," said the visitor, pushing back the cowl from his face. "Will you be so good as to sit down?"

The captain general gave a start of terror, and his face blanched. It was Berceo, the insurgent chief, who stood before him.

"Listen to me, senior, and I'll tell you what I want. You have offered $40,000 for my head. See, I have brought it myself and claim the money."

Berceo stepped nearer and drew from under his cloak a long native knife. "I can't very well carry Mexican dollars. I will take Spanish bank notes. Hurry!"

General Marcia ground his teeth in rage, but dared do nothing except obey. He knew well the character of the man he was dealing with. From a desk near by he counted out the equivalent of $40,000 in Bank of Spain notes and handed them to the rebel leader, who began to back toward the door. "Good day, senior," he said politely and sprang out. A guard at the door and he left him down with the knife, and, throwing off his monk's garb, he reached the street and made good his escape.

That same night grandfather sat smoking on his wide veranda, which looked out upon the bay. One or two acquaintances from the neighboring compounds had dropped in for a chat, but by 10 o'clock he was alone again. As he sat dreaming lightly he was out at the twinkling lights on the ships at anchor he heard a step on the stairs behind him.

He thought it was his Chinese servant. Soon, however, a familiar voice spoke:

"Senior, excuse the intrusion."

He turned around, and there stood his former clerk, Juan Aguado.

"Why, Juan, what a pleasure! But how you startled me, come sit down and tell me all about yourself."

Aguado smiled. "Are we quite alone, senior?" he asked, glancing around furtively.

"Yes, entirely so; the servants have gone to bed."

"Well, Juan, you want to know all about myself. I can tell you in a word—I am Berceo."

"My grandfather was a cool man. 'Come inside. It's damp here,'" he said and led the way to a room back of the veranda.

Briefly Aguado told him what had taken place in the last two years. The man that had called upon him the day he left brought evil news. His home village had been destroyed, and his father, a petty official up country, had been imprisoned on some trumped up charge, and his two brothers had been killed in a fight with their Spanish guards. He had long known what Spanish rule was in the old provinces; but, alas, his revolution did not succeed.

Next he told how he had just braved the captain general in his very palace and wrong from him the price set upon his own head.

"By the grace of God I escaped, but it will not be for long unless, senior, you help me."

"Not knowing what I should have done in your place, Juan," said grandfather slowly, "I'm not the man to see you hand over to Don Xavier Marcia again. Let me think."

After awhile grandfather said: "I think I have it. A captain friend of mine sails for Hongkong on the morning breeze. If I can get you on board his ship, you are safe."

"Talking English, they made their way quietly to the harbor front and called a sampan. They looked like two belated English captains going out to their ships."

A half mile out in the bay lay the John Dorset, ready to weigh anchor. My grandfather hailed, and when the captain appeared he climbed on board, leaving Aguado below in the boat.

Grandfather drew the captain below and told him who the man was in the sampan and what he wanted.

Captain Higgins of the John Dorset was an old sea dog of the genuine Yankee type. He liked a man who had what he called "sand for ballast," as Luiz Berceo evidently had.

"Shiver my mainmast, but I'll take him!" said Captain Higgins. "I can have my cabin till we are well past Cebu and out to sea."

This is about the end of the story. Aguado escaped safely to Hongkong. A year or two afterward, just before grandfather sold out his business and started home, he received a package from a Chinese port. It contained a beautifully bound Malay kris with the name "Juan Aguado" upon the blade.—Detroit Free Press.

Obviously Innocent.

The prisoner confronted his accusers calmly.

"My innocence is obvious!" he replied.

The usual hush fell upon the court. "Look!" the prisoner exclaimed. "My alleged accomplices, who stand acquitted as a tall man, a fat man, and a tall man! Robbery is always done by a short man and a tall man!"

Ab, how stupid of the police not to have thought of that!

The Country Clergyman.

An old clergyman who had held a cure in the country for many years, and for the greater part of his life had occasion to consult his bishop on a certain matter, and, in answer to his letter, received an invitation to sleep the night at the palace. For 40 or 50 years he had practically led the life of a recluse, and it was after many cogitations that he decided to take the journey to the other end of the diocese, where the bishop lived. He arrived just in time for 5 o'clock tea, a meal to which he was a complete stranger.

After tea the bishop asked him to accompany him to evensong. When they returned to the house, the bishop remarked that it was quite time they went up stairs, lit a candle and showed his guest to his room. It was then just 7 o'clock, and, though the old clergyman thought it was rather early to retire, still, admiring the bishop for such simple habits, he prepared for bed. He had just put out the light and laid down to sleep, wishing he had drunk a little more tea, when a booming noise rang through the house and smote upon his ear.

As he thought he sprang from his bed and, shouting "Fire!" at the top of his voice, rushed out on to the landing just in time to meet the bishop, with a lady on his arm, going down to dinner. The sequel to the story has never been divulged.—Cornhill Magazine.

A Lost Opportunity.

It was near one of the large railroad stations. A man rather advanced in years, whose old fashioned attire and open mouthed wonderment proclaimed that he was a visitor from the rural districts and not accustomed to the every-day sights of a large city, was suddenly accosted by a sharp visaged youth with, "Mister, yer dropped yer wallet!" As he spoke he held forth a large velvet bag with a string of money, various covered with a couple of dollar bills.

Uncle Rubie looked at the greenbacks bulging out of the wallet with equally protruding eyes, hesitated just one moment, and then, his cupid eye evidently catching the money, he reached for it. "Hold on; give us a tinner first," exclaimed the possessor of the wallet.

The old man quickly put his hand in his trousers pocket; but, after a moment, drawing forth his empty hand, he drawled out, "Take it out o' the wallet."

The youth, closing the wallet with ill concealed disgust, turned on his heel and hurried off. The stranger in town looked after the youth with a money-bag and looked after the youth with a money-bag.

"Hold on, I told Sal I'd need more $3," he resumed his peaceful way.—Philadelphia Record.

ent plants, thus increasing the capabilities and importance of the present enterprise. It is not necessary to refer to the industry from a provincial or national point of view.

THE PLANT

The smelting works of the Deseronto Iron Company are situated at the end of the town south of Main street and directly on the shore of the Bay of Quinte. The line of the Bay of Quinte Railway has been extended to the works thus giving excellent connection for the carriage of material by rail as well as by water. The ore dock is an extensive structure with the boats for lifting the ore from the holds of vessels, and with a trestle and tramway for carrying the ore to the piling ground adjoining the furnace. The accompanying cut will give the reader a good idea of the dock and trestle. The works cover an area of four acres of ground. The main building is of large proportions and the engine room is a substantial structure. We will not weary the reader with a technical description of the plant. Suffice it to say that the furnace will for the present turn out about 1,000 tons per month, a total of 12,000 tons per annum. By a further extension of this capacity can easily, if found necessary, be doubled, and the castings are large enough for even the production of 100 tons a day. The furnace itself is 61 feet high with "boiler" 9 ft. 6 in. in diameter. The flame passes through four turrets. A charcoal pit with bell and hopper, and hot air are carefully weighed and lifted by elevator to the top of the furnace and dumped therein. These constitute what is called a "charge." The quantity of ore in a charge is about 2000 lbs. From this is produced about 1100 lbs. equal to 58 per cent. of pig iron. Careful analyses are made of all materials and the iron is graded by analysis, there being fourteen different grades, these depending on the temper of the metal. The molten metal is drawn off at the bottom of the furnace, the adjoining floor being covered with sand from eight to ten inches deep in which channels have been made. The ore, used, hard and soft, heated, was brought by vessel from points on the Minnesota and Michigan shores of Lake Superior. There is no doubt that before very long the mines of Ontario will furnish a large proportion, if not all, of the ore to be manufactured by the plant. The motive power is furnished by a powerful engine and the machinery started off most easily and smoothly, showing that the greatest attention had been paid to every detail in its construction. The lights are lighted by electricity generated by their own dynamos. The office adjoining the works and is fitted up in a most comfortable manner. It overlooks the works, the bay and a large stretch of adjoining country.

NOTES.

There will be three runs of the metal each day.

There are 27 charcoal iron smelters in Michigan.

Miss Sherwood is assayer and chemist for the works.

Thos. Rowland is accountant in the office of the Company.

The first run of ore was made at 1 p. m. on Thursday, Jan. 26th.

There has been a rush of visitors to the works during the past few days.

Felix de Clauin is the engineer, and Stephen Fallon founder of the works.

J. M. Hurley, M. P. for East Hastings, was a visitor at the works yesterday.

The works were erected under the supervision of M. C. Fustenau, C. E. of Detroit.

The furnace runs day and night and the average term of a charcoal furnace is two years.

The Ontario and the Dominion governments give substantial encouragement to the iron industry.

The ore used in the Deseronto furnace came from what is known as the Marquette and Vermilion ranges.

The Gaylord Iron Company commenced operation at Detroit in 1881.

Prior to 1881 it was known as the Detroit & Lake Superior Iron Co.

The present officers of the company are W. Gerhäuser, president, and F. B. Gaylord, secretary-treasurer.

General manager, E. W. Rathbun, was the first president of the company.

The works are thoroughly complete in every respect. All the labor-saving devices are in use and every provision made against fire.

The plant employ Canadian labor as far as possible.

DEATH BED WEDDING.

Ottawa, Jan. 26.—While A. Gibson was cutting wood in a bush at Eardly, in Ottawa County, a tree fell on his leg and fractured it in three places. He lay on the snow for an hour and was found exhausted. When taken home he was found to be dead.

Gibson was married in the afternoon to his cousin, and died the next day.

Gibson was an important witness in the Rippelle murder case.

WESTBROOK.

Jan. 24.—Revised services are still continued in our church, conducted by Rev. John Ferguson of Lennox.

Rev. T. Brown of the Brock street church, Kingston, preached the missionary sermon on Sabbath last.

He was a masterly effort and greatly appreciated.

F. A. Knight is spending a couple of weeks in this vicinity visiting friends before leaving for Riverside, Cal. fornia.

Allen Gates has returned home from Waltham, Dakota, where he spent the past summer.

Quarterly services were held in the First Methodist church, Catorauqui, Sabbath last.

Quite a number are on the sick list, suffering from Grippe.

Our new teacher, Miss F. Martin, is giving good satisfaction.

A. Ashley has moved to Murvale where he intends going into hotel business.

The skating on the pond is excellent and much enjoyed.

A court of the J. O. E. has been formed at Peterboro.

Joe Hunter Killed.

Toronto, Jan. 25.—Joseph A. Hunter, late of this city, and well-known in the County of York, was shot and killed near Viridian, B.C., on Jan. 10. It is stated that he was watering his horse on one side of the river and was mistaken for a deer and shot by a hunter from the opposite shore. He was buried on the 15th inst.

Adieu Sir Herbert.

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 25.—Sir Herbert Murray, the retiring Governor of Newfoundland, will leave St. John's today, on route for London. His successor, Sir Henry Edwards MacCallum, Governor and commander-in-chief of the British colony of Lagos, West Africa, will leave England for Newfoundland about Feb. 1.

Exposed to Smallpox.

Toronto, Jan. 25.—Dr. Vanx of Napanea writes to the Provincial Board of Health to the effect that the smallpox patient in Leeds County came in by train and accordingly a large number of people have been exposed.

CZAR MAY EXPEL HIM.

Tolstol, the Russian Novelist, Has Made a Host of Enemies.

CRIME: HE HELPED DOUKHOBORES

The Action of Count Tolstol's Elderly Son, in Personally Assisting the Russian Quakers, who are founding settlements in the Canadian Northwest.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 25.—The report of the expulsion of Count Tolstol in the near future will not, despite the extremely cordial meeting which the great Russian idealist had with the Czar recently.

The report is founded principally on the fact that the Count has made a host of enemies by the aid he has given to the emigrating Doukhobors or Russian Quakers, who are founding settlements in the Canadian Northwest.

The Czar is highly displeased at the action of Count Tolstol's eldest son, who is making preparations to accompany a large number of emigrants to Canada, where he will help them to acquire homes, after which he will return under the parental roof.

The Doukhobors say they receive inspiration directly from heaven, without the aid of the Bible or the Trinity. They regard the priesthood and the sacraments, reject the doctrine of the Trinity and refuse to take the oath or to enlist in military service.

This great date from the days of Peter the Great, when small communities were started all over the Russian Empire. They suffered great persecution under Catherine II. and Paul I. Alexander I. tolerated them, confining them, however, to the Province of Tauris. In 1864 they were removed to the district of Anhalak, in Trans-Caucasia. They are industrious, and are excellent farmers and cattle raisers.

JAMAICA IS IN BAD SHAPE.

Something Radical Must Be Done Elsewhere Will Be Hunkered.

London, Jan. 25.—An official circular has been issued containing the report of the West Indian commission from Jamaica to Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, dated at Kingston, Jan. 17, and of March will be 217,000. The commission regards the situation as extremely critical, and expresses the opinion that the United Kingdom is in progress, but the expenditures largely increased, the colony will shortly be unable to meet its liabilities.

The circular states that Mr. Chamberlain informed the commission that negotiations for the conclusion of a reciprocity treaty between the British West Indies and the United States are in progress, but he could express no opinion as to the prospects of their success.

Peaceful Solution Expected.

London, Jan. 25.—In well-informed quarters a representative of the Associated Press was informed yesterday that a peaceful solution of the Newfoundland question between France and Great Britain is expected very shortly. It means compensation to the French fishermen, and the surrender of their rights under the treaty of Utrecht.

A solution simultaneously of the French shore question and the matter of the occupation of St. Pierre. Migration is looked for, and the French islands as being little better than a big smuggling center, detrimental alike to Newfoundland, Canada and the United States.

The French rights to the establishment there of the conditions contemplated when they were ceded to France.

It was rumored last evening that the Government of the United Kingdom had decided to submit the Newfoundland dispute to arbitration.

French Rights Incontrollable.

Paris, Jan. 25.—The Chamber of Deputies resumed the debate of foreign affairs. Referring to Newfoundland, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, M. Delcasse, said the French rights there were uncontrollable, that no one questioned them and that there was no reason to suppose that they would not be respected. The debate was then closed.

Dreyfus to Be Questioned.

London, Jan. 25.—The Daily Telegraph published a dispatch from Cayenne, French Guiana: "Fresh instructions to interrogate Dreyfus respecting the depositions of the French rights there were uncontrollable, that no one questioned them and that there was no reason to suppose that they would not be respected. The debate was then closed."

The Earthquakes in Greece.

Athens, Jan. 25.—The seismic disturbances which began on Sunday in the provinces of Peloponnese still continue, and the French rights there were uncontrollable, that no one questioned them and that there was no reason to suppose that they would not be respected. The debate was then closed.

Antarctic Expedition.

Berlin, Jan. 25.—The Minister of the Interior, Count Posadowski-Wohner, during the course of the debate on the House of Commons estimates in the House yesterday, said Prince Hohenlohe, the Imperial Chancellor, was prepared to consider the proposal of an expedition to the Antarctic continent.

No Animosity Against America.

Munich, Jan. 25.—At a meeting of the American residents in Germany it was decided to send a telegram to the Government at Washington a protest against the anti-German expressions used in the House of Commons yesterday, and to send a declaration that no animosity against America exists in Germany.

Hinton House Harried.

London, Jan. 25.—The remains of the late Earl Ponsonby will be interred in the family vault at Hinton, St. George Church, Grosvenor Park, on Monday. The funeral will not be until after the funeral, but Hinton House is harried, and the entrance gates are locked.

as if it were apprehended that he might attempt to take forcible possession.

STEPS DOWN AND OUT.

Oscar, King of Sweden, Abdicates in Favor of His Iron-Will'd Son—Some of His Reasons.

Stockholm, Jan. 25.—King Oscar, who reached his 70th year last Saturday, has provisionally placed the reins of government in the hands of his eldest son, the Crown Prince Gustaf.

While it is generally reported that the abdication of the King, who has been in feeble health for more than two years, is only temporary, those nearest to court who are in a position to know the state of affairs, declare that he will never again return to the throne.

The step was taken by order of the court physicians, who claim that, though some improvements have been manifested, the King's condition is such that he will never be able to take part in public affairs would prove fatal.

King Oscar's abdication has been made worse by the rebellious spirit which his Norwegian subjects have exhibited of late. For years His Majesty has tried to pacify the demands of the Liberal party, which are regarded as unpatriotic and unreasonable by the Swedes.

Most bitter to the King was the action of the Norwegian Storting before the close of last year in adopting a Norwegian flag without the union emblem, though His Majesty had refused to do so.

The regime of King Oscar has been characterized by a spirit of peace and kindness. His subjects love to refer to him as one of nature's noblemen, a sweet to the core, intensely patriotic and an ardent and ardent champion of the poorer classes within his domain.

Crown Prince Gustaf, who has assumed the government, is in the prime of life, very intelligent of his illustrious father. He is a man with an iron will, and it is believed that what, on account of innate goodness, King Oscar could not accomplish, namely, the quelling of the seditious spirit in Norway, Prince Gustaf will accomplish by force, if necessary.

Crown Prince Gustaf was born in June, 1858. His wife is the Princess Victoria of Baden, a lady of remarkable linguistic accomplishments, and a leader in all the social movements of the day.

King Oscar has already left Stockholm and will spend the balance of the winter in Saltoja, Baden.

Price of Tin Goes Up.

London, Jan. 25.—There is much excitement in Cornwall owing to the heavy advance in the price of tin, which yesterday was quoted at 26s. against 24s. during the past fortnight.

This is the Wedding Day.

London, Jan. 25.—Elaborate preparations are being made at Craig-y-Nos and at Brecon, South Wales, to celebrate the marriage to-day of Madame Adelina Patti to Baron Cederstrom.

The Case of Sydney O. Slocum.

All the Evidence in and Counsel's Addresses Finished.

Toronto, Jan. 25.—The trial of Sydney O. Slocum, on a charge of criminally assaulting Mrs. Sadie Cullerton at the Lucas House on Sept. 27 last was continued yesterday before Mr. Justice Robertson in the Criminal Court.

Mr. Victor Collier and Miss Good, who live at the Lucas House, testified that they heard screams emanating from the room 40 on the night in question, and saw Mr. Lucas, proprietor of the house, come upstairs to quell the disturbance.

Thomas Donlon, one of the men who found Mrs. Cullerton in the room with the prisoner, told of his meeting Cullerton, W. F. Young and A. G. Shaw, and the latter's testimony.

C. N. Pirie, a reporter, related the story of the affair as told to him by Slocum, and many aspects of the case were brought out by his testimony.

The defence was commenced in the afternoon after Mr. Robinson argued that there was no evidence to go to a jury.

The testimony of Miss Lucas, Alfred Hodgins, James McIlroy and William Brown, of the Lucas House, was given to show that there was nothing in the woman's appearance to suggest that she had been drugged.

Mr. Robinson then conferred with his client whether or not he would enter the box in his own behalf, but Slocum declined, and counsel were allowed to charge this morning.

FURIOUS FIGHTING IN BOLIVIA.

Insurgents Said to Have Defeated the Government Troops.

Lima, Peru, Jan. 25.—According to advice received from the Government, the insurgents of the interior, who were defeated by President Almon, with the result that the latter was defeated with the loss of a colonel and 100 men.

The insurgents captured 100 prisoners. It is added that desertions from the President's troops are occurring daily.

NORTH WATERLOO ELECTION.

Appeal and Cross-Appeal Being Argued at Osgoode Hall.

Toronto, Jan. 25.—The North Waterloo election case was argued yesterday before the Court of Appeal. Messrs. Aylesworth and W. J. Jackson, the defendant in the original petition, and Messrs. E. F. B. Johnston and J. C. Hale for Dr. Cameron, the plaintiff, were present.

Conservatives claim that the former trial was illegal, having been held without their consent, and while the Liberals reply that as this was not raised at the trial, there was tacit consent. The case continues to-day.

A MAALOST.

Lost! No man understands the full meaning of that word like the man who has been lost. He will tell you: "I was in the woods going about steadily when I realized I'd missed the trail. With a cry of 'Lost!' I broke into a run heedless of ignorant of the direction I was going."
